Nicotine? Not at all. That is tobacco tar — the dark brown, semi-solid, intensely irritant product of burning leaf. You see what it does to your fingers — think what it does to your throat! That's what causes the coughing and catarrh, the burning, the dried-up feeling. . . . The filter tip of a du Maurier traps tobacco tar. Nicotine suave enchantment — lives in the cool, full-flavoured smoke of a du Maurier cigarette. Smoke that is smoother for being unspoilt — better for being clean.

CHAPTER XXIV

Derek said, "We haven't had a quiet evening at home for weeks." He said, "I'm tired of this everlasting merry-go-round. Let's cut some of it."

Lila frowned, the expression creasing her smooth white forehead into unbecoming ridges. And she did so into a frown! But Derek was being tiresome. What else was there to do besides what they already did?

"Don't be stupid," she said airily. She was sitting at her dressing table, a sheer lace and satin jacket thrown on over her fitted creamy slip. Her stockings were sheer; her sandals were fashioned of gilded straps. Her yellow hair was smooth as satin except where it sprang, just below the temple, into two deep, arched waves. "Don't be idiotic, darling," she said, arching her neck to enjoy the lovely line in the mirror. "Anyone'd think you were 50 and goutish. It's a lovely party to-night."

"It's always a lovely party," Derek told her, looking more annoyed than ever. "And what happens? We dine, dance with the same people, see the same plays, laugh at the same deadly jokes. Joke, sometimes I feel as if I were on one of those Coney Island terris wheels and couldn't get off."

"Well, that's perfectly silly of you, and I don't know what you're talking about." Usually when she talked like this Lila disposed of her husband's "mish" moods. To-night he was different. He was not to be won back to tractability by smiles and scoldings. He persisted in his attitude of discontent. "It's this beastly way of living," he complained. "In a rabbit warren, with all the rest of the animals. Now if we had a house in the country and a couple of children—"

"A couple! I like that!" Lila, offended by the thought of even one baby, allowed her tinkling laugh to sound at this preposterous notion.

"I'd like a house, a more simple, solid way of living," Derek said stubbornly. "I'd like kids. Wouldn't you?"

Lila threw out her hands. "Of course, darling," she agreed, all sweet reasonableness. "Of course. But later. Not now. We're young! We must amuse ourselves. In five years . . . in ten, perhaps . . ."

He set his jaw stubbornly. Lila had seen him in this mood once or twice before. He was not to be budged.

"I'm not going to-night, anyway," he said. "I've got a beastly cold. Been feeling rotten all day. And I have a heavy morning with a client to-morrow."

She stared at him, eyes narrowed. "Oh, very well, then!" She turned back to her dressing table.

Derek's eyes lighted with triumph. It wasn't often Lila was so amenable. She was sweet, really. He wanted to put his arms around her, to bury his face in the softness of her hair, to tell her all the pretty things she used to like to hear but was busy to listen to nowadays.

But before he could say a word she reached for the white and gilt telephone on the low table beside her. She gave a number. Derek, frowning, waited.

"That you, Marko? Yes. Lila. Derek's feeling seedy. You're going to the Martins to-night aren't you? Well, be a lamb and drop by for me. Thanks so much. About 10."

She hung up. "That's that," she said gaily. "I wouldn't miss those Russian dancers for worlds. Run along, darling. I told Koto dinner at eight and it's almost that now."

Derek stood up. He had got his way—that is, partly, and yet he wasn't satisfied. Of course it was perfectly all right for Lila to go to the Martin party with Marko. Why not? But he had so hoped she'd give the affair up for him. It was such a little thing to do.

Still nursing that sense of bafflement, of defeat, Derek went to his own room. He ran his hand over his chin. He must shave and change and, oh, God, he was so tired! What wouldn't he give for a bite by his own fire, a woman opposite him with a quiet voice, in a dark gown? Lila scarcely ever wore dark things except for street wear. In the evening she was always slim, supple and perfumed, her hair exquisitely coiffed, her skin gleaming. She wore silver tulle and gilt, creamy lace. Soft fabrics rustled deliciously at her approach and soft scents lingered on the air.

Almost like a man in a daze, he dressed for dinner. The meal was, as always, perfectly served; the food piquant, delicious. But something was missing. Derek found himself muttering under his breath, "Better a dish of herbs where love is . . ." But he couldn't remember the rest.

"What did you say, darling?" Lila looked at him oddly.

"Nothing. Nothing." He pulled himself up with a start.

Later he punctiliously pulled out her chair for her, waited while she preceded him into the dim drawing room and lighted her cigarette. Rain was falling over the city now, splashing against the windows in black rivulets. He shivered. The cold which had seized him earlier in the day took a firmer grip upon him. He felt ill . . . miserable.

Lila turned on the radio and the music sickened him. He must be definitely ill, he told himself vaguely, to be in such a ghastly frame of mind. He tried to pull himself together, to be chatty and casual, but he felt his effort to be a decided failure.

For her part, Lila seemed not to notice and he was grateful. There was something to be said about Lila's determined effort to live on the surface of life. People like that—people who insisted on the gracious, the luxurious, in everything—were rather easy to live with if all you wanted was creature comfort, he thought. But with his whole soul he found himself longing for something beyond and apart from all these soft cushions, shaded lights and clinking glasses. He hoped he wasn't whining about being "misunderstood." No, his need was deeper and more fundamental than that. It had something to do with home . . . with the old fashioned interpretation of the word.

"Home is where the heart is," Derek murmured, staring at his cordial glass, tipping it until he could see the poisonous green lights flash in its depth. "Home," he told his wife gravely, "is where you hang your hat."

She flashed him a puzzled, an annoyed glance. "Derek, I do believe you're tight."

"Sorry, darling." He bowed to her. Koto slipped by to answer Marko's ring. A moment later Broughton was in the room, big, masculine, smiling, exuding the familiar sense of power. Derek, who was all loyalty to his employer, felt an emotion almost of dislike for Marko at the moment.

"Derek's rocky," Lila explained further. "Touch of flu, I think." She went to get her wrap and to add the little touches her makeup required at the last moment. She was beautiful to-night. Both men

BANK SCANDAL

ECHO OF HARRIMAN CRASH

New York, June 12.
Nine banks have offered to settle out of Court the suit which the Federal Government has brought, seeking to compel twenty banks, members of the New York Clearing House, to pay 11,000 de-positors of the defunct Harriman
National Bank $9,375,000 deposited in that bank.
The suit is without precedence in the history of the United States.

The offer of the nine member banks is not for settlement in full.
They offer to make good 45 per cent. of the deficiency, but expect their offer to be accepted. The remaining member banks have declined to contribute.

When the suit was first filed, representatives of the Banks denied the Government's allegation that they guaranteed the solvency of the Harriman Bank.
The suit alleged that the Clearing House Committee, at a critical period in 1932, pledged itself to support the Harriman Bank if Government officials would permit it to remain open, though they knew its condition was unsound.
It has been stated that only eight of the twenty member banks had any knowledge of the negotiations.

On the day that the late Mr.
Woodin, Secretary of the Treasury, asked the Manufacturers
Trust Company to take over the Harriman assets "without risk to itself" and pay depositors in full,
Joseph Wright Harriman, ex-chairman of the Bank was arraigned in Court for allegedly making false entries in the Bank's books, involving millions of dollars.
Harriman's trial has not yet concluded.—Reuter.

paid her the tribute of admiring glances.

"My gals, your loss," Marko smiled benignly at the younger man.

"Oh, he'll go to bed with a hot tummy and be right as rain in the morning. Won't you, darling?"
"Enjoy yourself," Derek said hollowly.

After they had gone he sat at the high, embrasured window for rather a long time, thinking. It was odd but he hadn't been quite alone like this, for ever so long.
For more than a year. Even at the office where he had his private cubicle he was always talking to someone. The telephone would ring or someone would drop in. It was good to be solitary—for a little while. But he wished Lila had stayed, all the same.

"Marvellous!" Lila leaned back in her chair, fanning herself. The Russian dancers swept to the floor, bowing; swept out again. The lights went up in the ballroom and the orchestra began to play a blues number. People were already dancing.

Marko leaned toward her. "What do you think about going on to Luigi's?"

Lila lifted her brows. That was all right. Marko always tired of big parties early. He liked the small, intimate places.

To-night there was not the usual train of followers. Derek called them "Marko's Greek chorus." He had a fancy to be quiet, he said.

"Two side-cars, please," Lila purred her enjoyment. Luigi's was what New York called a "de luxe speakeasy." All soft lights and elegance; an old brownstone front made over with taste.

She saw one or two people she knew and nodded to them. Marko was smiling at her. "How do things go, child?"

She liked being called child. It made you feel small and protected and precious. Derek never called her that, although he had other names—sweet names, too—for her.

She widened her eyes. "I don't know what is the matter with Derek. He seems—well, going stale."
Marko pursed his lips. "Bad.
Can't understand it."
Lila felt a twinge of compunc-tion. She meant to play the game, to be loyal, but Marko's understanding sympathy tempted her.
"He's—well, different," she said softly.
"Odd!" Marko's big, well-kept hand slid over hers. "My dear, all these young men are alike," he said softly. "A trifle selfish. Now
I..."
Lila was used to light flirtations but Marko's voice had a new note in it.
Instinctively he said, "You know I'm mad about you, don't you?"

THE BLACK SHIRT MENACE

The hint by Sir John Gilmour that the Government is not disposed to tolerate the methods of the Mosley Black Shirts much longer is satisfactory so far as it goes, but the situation which has developed would appear to call for prompt and definite action. The fact is now well established that the British Fascists, when dealing with political opponents, overstep the necessities by taking it upon themselves to usurp the functions of the police. Such tactics cannot be tolerated. Like all political units, the Black Shirts must expect to encounter opposition, the more so when they present their case in such a manner as to invite retaliation. Sir Oswald Mosley, in seeking to make a case for his minions, has pointed to the fact that the Black Shirts are not the only people who appear in public in uniform—he has even cited the Boy Scouts and the Salvation Army! But the point which he conveniently ignores is that these are not political bodies, seeking to thrust their opinions on other people. Moreover, it is not so much a question of the use of a distinctive uniform by the Mosleyites as the idea at the back of its use. The Black Shirts are without question a semi-military organisation, and, what is more, most of their activities are modelled on that basis. Their methods are totally foreign to British political tradition, and it is therefore hardly to be wondered at that a growing resentment against the movement should manifest itself. The mischief is that if action is not soon taken, we may soon see rival bodies, working on similar lines, come into being. The possibilities in such a situation are too serious to be lightly disposed of. The eventual upshot might be armed clashes, accompanied by bloodshed, all over the country. And the point to be kept in mind is that such a catastrophic state of affairs would be directly attributable to the Mosley venture. The plain fact is that there is no room in England for such a madcap creation as the Black Shirt organisation or for the methods which it typifies. Therefore, the sooner it is brought under control and shorn of its worst features, the better will it be for the country as a whole. Far too much latitude has been already permitted; the time for firm and definite action has arrived. It is to be hoped that the Government will have the courage to suppress the movement without further ado.

NOTES OF THE DAY*ORDEAL BY SENATE

Professor Tugwell has successfully ridden out the storm and has been accepted as Under-Secretary of Agriculture. But he will be many observers in the United States who will associate his denial of a radical political creed with those of Peter. Dr. Tugwell's views have been the subject of more speculation and dispute than those of any other individual closely connected with the New Deal and the Brain Trust. Critics denounce him as the master-mind of a revolution and others see in him the prophet of a new era. The miracle of the ado about his personal viewpoint is that his value to the Administration must suffer, as an ulterior motive will always be sought for in any of his recommendations. It was destructive over-publicity that lost the advice of Professor Moley to President Roosevelt.

THE TEST

There can be no quarrel with the verdict of the First Test, although it worked itself out in curious ways. Australia were superior in nearly every department, for although their most boasted batsmen did comparatively little, they were not dragging behind them an unsupportable tail. The outstanding personalities were Chipperfield, who gloriously justified his last-minute selection by a brilliant 99 in the first innings and superb work in the field, McCabe, who rescued Australia in both innings, O'Reilly and Grimmett, Kenneth Farnes alone of the England XI brought solace to the selectors. Hendren did well in the first innings and Sutcliffe sufficiently well in both to indicate that he cannot be left out, but there is a large question mark against several others. Some mitigating circumstances there were, of course. A crumbling wicket with four hours and fifty minutes of play and two spin bowlers of the quality of O'Reilly and Grimmett, meant that ability to hold out was doubtful from the outset of the innings. It would, however, have been unfortunate if Australia had been robbed by time of a well-earned victory.

WOMEN IN THE CIVIL SERVICE

The prolonged struggle of British feminists to secure "equal rights with men" has diminished in intensity as one position after another has been surrendered to them. They have won the full right to vote in parliamentary elections, to sit in Parliament, to plead at the bar, to serve on juries, and to enter the civil service (excepting the defence services and the diplomatic and consular services), and they have acquired equal rights in regard to divorce and the ownership of property. But there is one disqualification which they have hitherto laboured in vain to remove—women in all branches of the civil service are required to resign on marriage. This limitation is now likely to be modified in view of a report issued by a joint committee of official and staff representatives set up to consider the recommendations of a Royal Commission.

COMPROMISE PLAN

Women in the higher branches of the service complained that the rule constituted an interference on the part of the State with the private lives of employees; that as long as they remained efficient the employer had no right to inquire whether they were married or single. For some years the feminist organisations, with so few remaining worlds to conquer, have concentrated their efforts on removing the ban on married women. The decision arrived at is a compromise. Under its terms a married woman may be retained or recruited if the authorities are satisfied that her employment is advisable in the light of her special qualifications or of the special requirements of the department in which she is serving. Moreover the regulations are to be framed so that the privilege is to be a reality, and not accorded only under very exceptional conditions.

THE SPIRIT

No doubt much will depend on the spirit in which heads of departments interpret the rule; but the result will probably be that clever women who succeed in entering the civil service will be able to feel that so long as they work hard and remain efficient they will have no reason to fear dismissal. They come near to obtaining the coveted equality with men; and it will be observed that here, as in certain other respects, they will actually gain certain advantages not enjoyed by men—for they may still draw the marriage gratuity, if they retire, and, if they remain, will be entitled to two months' maternity leave on full pay. Thus all along the line in Great Britain the legal obstacles to women's equality of opportunity are being removed.

SOCIALIST FORCES IN BRITAIN

By R. A. SCOTT JAMES

IN RECENT by-elections in Great Britain, the Labour Party has considerably increased its poll as compared with the 1931 general election; but there is as yet no indication whatever that the tide has turned strongly against the National Government. A powerful factor which from the first has favoured the National Government continues to handicap the Labour Party—fear of that shadowy entity known as Socialism. It is shadowy because it is so variously defined, and there are as many kinds of Socialist policy as there are groups of Socialists. As expounded by some it means the class wars, for others it necessitates a constitutional revolution, and for others it indicates no more than a progress by slow stages toward the Socialist ideal. In some of its aspects there is nothing to terrify the bourgeois mind; in others it appears to mean the end of the existing form of civilization. If there were reasonable certainty as to what the triumph of the Socialists would mean, there might be less apprehension as to what would be involved in a defeat of the National Government.

This confusion of thought is the more intelligible when we realize that there are four political Socialist organizations in Great Britain, two within the fold of the Labour Party, and two outside it. The noisiest are not necessarily the most influential. On the extreme Left is the Communist Party, acknowledging allegiance only to the Third International of Moscow. No need to state here their purpose and policy. They are non-national; they are uncompromising; they are the disciplined instruments of dogmatic Communism at headquarters; they are for revolution and the destruction of the present regime and the present prevailing state of mind by any means whatsoever. In Britain their numbers are few, and they are not strong enough to win a single seat in Parliament.

Next to them, toward the Right, though still far to the Left, is the Independent Labour Party. This organization existed before the Labour Party itself. For more than a third of a century it has been the nucleus of the Labour Socialist movement in the country, and many of the most conspicuous Labour politicians, including Mr. Ramsay MacDonald himself, have been among its members. But in recent years it has moved much farther toward the Left, and about two years ago it completely severed its once-treasured connection with the official Labour Party. Now no person can be a member both of the Labour Party and the I. L. P. Its ultimate political and economic objects are similar to those of the Communists. It believes in the possibility of sudden revolution, and favours the method of attempting to sow the seeds of revolutionary thought among the workers, and it would like to establish a united front with Communism. But it refuses to accept orders from Moscow or from any outside organization, and it carefully refrains from advocating violence or illegality. Its leader is that able, popular, and much respected Member of Parliament, Mr. James Maxton.

The I. L. P. to-day is far weaker than it was a few years ago, and lost a great part of its membership when it decided to cut itself off from the official Labour Party. About one-half of its members seceded, including its most brilliant intellectuals, and formed a new body called the Socialist League, whose members are still within the circle of official Labour. The latter's most conspicuous leader is that most vocal of all British Labour politicians, Sir Stafford Cripps, a member of the last Labour Cabinet; and his right-hand man is Sir Charles Trevelyan, son of the historian. Sir Stafford has sprung into worldwide fame as "dictatorship Cripps," in view of his insistent statements which have been interpreted to mean that the next Socialist Government was prepared, in the last resort, if resisted by a recalcitrant House of Lords or a refractory Opposition, to set up a Labour dictatorship. The distinguishing feature in the policy of the league is its determination to implement the whole policy of state Socialism, including the nationalization of the banks, by one swift legislative stroke. Its aim is to alter the whole economic system of Great Britain during the life of a single Parliament.

The out-and-out declarations of the Socialist League have aroused much enthusiasm among the younger and more ardent Socialists throughout the country. They are logical and consistent in their arguments, and fiery in their appeal. There is a programme which attracts the leftward-moving minds and those who believe in hastening toward their objectives. Its members are potent influences within the Labour Party. But they are not the Labour Party itself. Their organization is almost without funds. They have no machinery for running separate candidacies for Parliament. They have no representatives on the executive of the party machine.

The official Labour Party, the central organization which is on the Right of the Socialist movement, controls the machinery at headquarters and in the constituency, and holds the purse strings. Its strength rests on the trades unions, whose funds provide the sinews of war and whose powerful organizations are the mainstay of the British Labour movement. The trades unionists as a body are tenacious of their traditions, and conservative in their moderate Socialist views. Thus supported, the official Labour Party is opposed to dictatorships; dislikes revolution, prefers the approach to Socialism by gradual methods, and declares its faith in democracy.

Such are the various Socialist forces which are arrayed against the National Government. It is at present the moderate official organization which controls the political opposition. There is no fear of the Communists; no fear of the Independent Labour Party; but since no one is quite certain how far the Socialist League may be able to assert its vigorous influence within the Labour Party, the shadow of a menacing uncertainty darkens the reputation of the political Labour movement among those who fear revolution.

The Very Idea!
ABOUT MADGE'S LEG

By George

"The Golden Candelar"

(N. B. Yesterday found our readers held in breathless suspense while Jeejeebhoy takes an eyeful of himself in his little pocket mirror. We asked then, what did Jeejeebhoy see in the mirror?

You must have guessed the answer by now, so we will pass on to the story. In reply to the irate readers whose letters arrived to-day we repeat that all the characters in this soul-absorbing serial are entirely fictitious. Nobody could possibly guess who we mean and if they did they would not like to say so.

To "Millicent" who wrote asking us to make Madge lose a leg, we have to point out that we have already planned Madge's life with two legs but we might find it opportune later to have Jeejeebhoy run over by a ricksha. Perhaps readers would like to express their views on this subject; if so we should be glad if they would advise us whether an operation for appendicitis would give Madge some sex appeal or whether she should develop a hump. Readers who are not up to date with previous snobs of our serial can read here the last paragraph of yesterday's which is good enough to be repeated anyway.

"Meanwhile Reginald, clad in a beautiful gown of diaphanous material, was strolling along the Praya whistling softly to the fish as they came to the surface to take an occasional breath. Now and then he took a little make-up box from his intimate pocket and had a peep at himself."

(One reader wrote saying that he had never heard of a man with an intimate pocket, but you must remember that Jeejeebhoy is still unmarried. Incidentally it will go strongly against our conscience to marry him at all, especially to Madge who is essentially a man's woman. By this we mean that you couldn't hit her with a beam and get away with it. But we must on with the story, so grip your teeth and read below.)

THIRD INSTALLMENT.

Reginald paused awhile to watch the bamboos shoot and the sampans strutting easily before the typhoon. It was an entertaining spectacle but Jeejeebhoy shared it alone for apart from a few trucks, trams, buses, cars, rickshas, chairs, Sanitary Department vehicles, a fire-engine, coolies, fishers, godown-men, and a host of people, he stood alone upon the deserted Praya.

He knew that Madge would be waiting for him and it was perhaps a streak of coyness or feminine contrariness that made him linger in the cool air.

(To Be Continued.)

(Why does Jeejeebhoy linger in the cool air? Has he got the "Hongkong dog" and, if so, what will be the effect on Madge when we do get them together? You will remember that we left Madge spitting over the verandah but we intend to put a stop to that to-morrow. Have a little patience folks, the plot thickens. Jeejeebhoy will definitely startle you on Thursday which is Madge's washing day.)

LESSONS IN JOURNALISM.

An editor is the last word in newspaper work and for this reason can never be accused of speaking out of turn. Regrettably enough, too, he is often the last straw.

Every reporter starts by being an editor until he is pulled up; then he starts becoming a reporter and generally remains becoming.

A man of firm decision, an editor must know when to say "When." It is the lack of this decision that had ruined many a potential editor whilst still in the cup—or rather cul—stage.

It is considered ungentlemanly for the head of a newspaper to swear at his subordinates, which explains why many of them die at their desks from repression. The fact that most of them are bald saves them from tearing their hair but all conscientious editors chew their nails whilst receiving visitors, to show that they are busy but can still do two things at the same time.

Editors' words are final and often unprintable, but they all attain the same high standard of wisdom as borne out by their leaders which sometimes read word for word the same. Still by cribbing his copy, the Editor breaks a hard and fast rule for other members of the staff and this strikes a note of originality.

"Now, driver, don't take your eyes off little Mary Belle."

SIR OSWALD SNEERS
AT DISRAELITories at "Shrine of Italian Jew"

Sir Oswald Mosley, atung by Tory criticism of his Blackshirt policy as "a foreign importation," has replied by attacking the Tories and his former hero—Disraeli.

The criticism of the Blackshirts was made by Mr. Duff Cooper, Financial Secretary to the War Office, at a Primrose League gathering, when it was pointed out that were Disraeli alive he would be refused membership of the Fascist Party.

Sir Oswald Mosley describes the Tory attack as the "best joke of the political year."

AN ITALIAN JEW.

"Disraeli," he said, "was in origin an Italian Jew whose family had for centuries lived on the Southern shores of the Mediterranean."

He thought it was ludicrous for Conservative leaders to describe Fascism as a foreign import while they worshipped at the shrine of an Italian Jew.

Conservatives, added Sir Oswald—who was speaking at Appleby (Westmorland)—denounced the young manhood of their own period for "adapting to the British character the creed of the modern world while they danced the like portly devils before the altar of their Eastern divinity chanting his obsolete incantations."

APPENDICITIS UNKNOWN

But Solomon Islanders
Like Artificial Legs

Solomon Islanders never get appendicitis and rarely cancer.

This, in the opinion of Dr. F. A. McPherson, who is in charge of the Melanesian Mission Hospital at Malaita and who has just returned to Sydney, is due to the suitability of the islanders' diet.

They are, however, very attracted by surgery. A native woman, Dr. McPherson told Austral News, had been supplied with an artificial leg, after an amputation, and so highly did the rest of the natives regard it that a man who had had a leg from youth sought an operation and obtained a new leg.

The bulk of the doctor's work is in tropical diseases and in treating the effects of falls from coconuts, trees, or injuries from falling coconuts.

WITH A RAZOR

Operated on in the wilds of South Australia for appendicitis by a man who used a razor, George Silver, a gold prospector, has just been again operated on in a Sydney hospital for the removal of horsehair, wool, and a paper fastener from the old wound.

While Silver and two other prospectors were at Mt. McKenzie, 600 miles from Port Augusta, trying to locate the Lasseter reef, he went down with appendicitis, and submitted to an operation by a man who had had veterinary experience, says Austral News. The wool and paper fastener were used to close the wound which was then sewn up with horsehair.

GRANDMOTHER

The youngest grandmother in the world was recently announced to be 29 years of age. Australia claims to have beaten the record. In Canberra, states Austral News, lives a 28 year old woman with her daughter who became a mother at fourteen.

TEST TUBE BABIES

AS OLD AS THE ROMANS

Paris, June 7.

The Romans knew a thing or two about test-tube babies, according to Professor Jean-Louis Faure, head of the department of gynecology of the Paris Faculty of Medicine.

"Anyway, syringes similar to the instruments now used by French physicians were discovered in the ruins of Pompeii," he maintains, and the practice of artificial insemination has been known to leading obstetricians in Europe for the past fifty years.

"In France," continues the Professor, "artificial impregnation is done only for married women. I have never heard of a case where an unmarried girl wanted to have a child in this way. But I can see why an American girl, jealous of personal liberty and wanting to be able to think a child 'all her own' might resort to this process."

Eugenic babies, said the specialist, conceived through artificial means are rare in France.

"I know one married woman who had a child by this means, by a man whose identity was not revealed. The husband, who was sterile, consented in order to make his wife happy. Usually the method is used to give childless couples infants, and the husband is the father."

Another French physician, Dr. Jean Ravina, of the staff of the American Hospital, said that "test-tube babies are possible. I have performed the necessary operation. It is not difficult. The only trouble is that husbands usually object to having it done. Artificial fecundation is made when a would-be mother has a physical obstruction, or when spermatozoa are found in too small a quantity for normal impregnation."

The French gained this knowledge when trying to propagate certain breeds of racehorses, Dr. Ravina explained. Prize mares were impregnated in this way, and later doctors tried the process with humans and found it successful. —United Press.

BLACKS' DRINKING
CAPACITYKIDNEYS MORE EFFICIENT

Does an Australian aborigine need as much water while working as a white man? To find the answer, Professor W. H. Davies of Sydney journeyed 5,000 miles to Central Australia and lived for a short time with the blacks.

He has just returned with his scientific curiosity satisfied. "The Central Australian aborigine," said he, "requires as much, if not more, water than the European." His kidneys, he also discovered, are definitely more efficient than those of the white man.

In order to ensure correct results, the professor fed himself and his two companions, and the blacks, on food and liquid always carefully weighed out. This was combined with the careful and periodical weighing of themselves and the subjects.

EXCITING SNAKE

BORE CHARMED LIFE

The tale of an exciting snake hunt in Belmont, a suburb of Sydney, New South Wales is sent by Austral News. For two days a six foot long black snake defied all attempts to dislodge it from a crevice between two buildings.

In vain were long lengths of water piping pushed along the aperture. In vain did firemen poke burning oily waste into the cavity. In vain they tried to shoot it. The snake seemed to bear a charmed life. And the aperture being blocked at both ends citizens were informed by an authority that the reptile could live for two months without food.

Finally it was despatched by a neighbouring mayor, a crack shot. He used a heavy military rifle which had last seen service at Gallipoli, and a bullet from his war haversack.

TWENTY-ONE TO-DAY.

HISTORY OF A POPULAR
HONGKONG STORE.

To-day, June 13, marks the coming-of-age of one of Hongkong's best-known and most enterprising establishments—Mackintosh's, Ltd., the men's wear specialists, whose reputation is known not only in Hongkong, but throughout the East.

To mark the event, Mackintosh's have issued an artistic little brochure, in which is given a brief history of the firm, together with a statement of the policy which it has consistently followed and which has won for it the high place which it occupies to-day.

Flaunting superstition, the firm opened its doors on June 13, 1913, with Mr. F. A. Mackintosh and a staff of one—a coolie! How well the foundations were laid, and how assiduously the founder of the firm applied himself to its development, may be gathered from the fact that to-day the staff consists of six Europeans and over forty other employees.

Aided by his staff of specialists, Mr. Mackintosh, the Managing Director of the firm, with his 32 years' experience of local conditions, provides the driving force, guiding the business with care and skill, but rigidly adhering to his original policy of "Quality First."

A feature of the policy laid down by the founder of the firm is the promotion of a friendly yet not too familiar atmosphere amongst the staff in the well-laid-out store, which is rightly claimed to equal most London shops of its kind and the most up-to-date in the Far East. The firm works on the principle that customers should have confidence in the judgment and ability of its staff, realising that it is of mutual advantage for a customer to be served by an assistant who knows the buyer's taste, his sizes, and even his idiosyncrasies.

Skilled, quiet attention to customers' needs, coupled with the judicious display of first quality goods, this is the basis on which the firm's reputation has been built up. Well-wishers of the firm will join in congratulating all concerned on the attainment of its majority, and in wishing it all prosperity.

KOBE COUNCIL
EXACTIONFOREIGN PAPER'S PLANT
ATTACHED

Tokyo, June 12.

It is learned that the British Charge d'Affaires, Mr. Dood, handed a Note to the Foreign Ministry on May 31, stating the British Government's strong objections to the arbitrary steps which the Kobe Municipality is taking to enforce payment of alleged arrears of Municipal taxes from the occupiers of perpetual leaseholds in Kobe.

The protest observed that this action was taken at a time when the British and Japanese Governments were negotiating settlement of the question.

The Note requested the Japanese Government urgently to instruct the Kobe authorities to desist from forcible exactions. Nevertheless, the Kobe Municipality is persisting and yesterday attached and sealed a number of articles on the premises of the Japan Chronicle, although it did not interfere with the day's issue of the newspaper. —Reuter.

The perpetual leases question in Japan has been a bone of contention for many years. The leases are a survival of extraterritoriality, which was abolished by treaty in 1899. They are now few. The Austrian and German leases were confiscated, and half the others have been extinguished by sales to Japanese. The remaining foreign leaseholders apparently demand that the Japanese Government buy them out. According to the Japan Chronicle, few of the foreign holders of the leases are now in occupation of the land. The title, however, remains good.

NEXT EMPIRE
CONFERENCECANBERRA SUGGESTED

There is talk in the air of Canberra being a possible meeting place for the next Empire Economic Conference.

The Federal Cabinet has before it a proposal to invite the Governments of the Empire to meet in Australia so that they may discuss what basis of co-operation is to succeed the Ottawa agreement. This has about 18 months to run, says Austral News, but the ministers consider that such an important conference demands plenty of time for preparatory work.

GAS EXPLOSION
INQUIRYMANAGER OF COMPANY
GIVES EVIDENCE

That the damage to the gas holder was at a point near the end house of Chung Shing Street (No. 13): that the top floor of No. 13 Chung Shing Street was well alight within sixty seconds of the collapse and before Clarence Terrace was alight, and that the gas holder had been effected by the fire at this point, was the opinion expressed by Mr. H. E. Stone, general manager and chief engineer of the Hongkong Gas Company, in the course of his evidence at the resumed inquiry into the West Point gasworks explosion before Mr. Hamilton, sitting as Coroner, at the Central Magistracy yesterday afternoon.

The first witnesses for the afternoon were Brothers Testa and Matterer, who were recalled, but their evidence was interpreted in such a low tone as to be inaudible to the Solicitors, Police Officers and pressmen seated at the table in front of the Bench.

This evidence was followed by that of a Chinese boy, Wong Ka-luk, who was also recalled. Mr. Hamilton asked him to give his evidence in story form, without replying to questions, and directed the interpreter to take it down in writing.

As this written evidence was not read out by the Coroner, Mr. W. A. Mackintosh, for the Gas Company, later asked if they might have a copy of the witness's evidence at the end of the proceedings.

Tenants Evidence.

Shek Kong, who was residing at 13 Chung Shing Street, ground floor, said that he heard a loud explosion as of a cannon, and the glass windows were shattered as if a typhoon was raging outside. As he was about to leave the kitchen he noticed some smoke become ignited. The smoke came from the gasometer behind the parapet wall. Cooking was in progress at the time.

Mr. Mackintosh: What do you use for cooking?—Firewood.

Do you use kerosene?—No.

How was the house lighted?—With electric lights.

Shek Kam, a sister of the last witness, said she saw a volume of flame shooting out of the cook-house, and on running out she saw the flames at the front door of the house.

Fong Kwai-to, who was residing at No. 10 Clarence Terrace, third floor, said a cloud of black smoke came into the house, and became ignited. The fire was burning furiously in the cubicle when he left.

Leung Mui, a young girl, who was behind the counter of a shop at No. 2 Clarence Terrace, ground floor, said she heard a loud bang, and then saw flames blown through the door. She squatted down in terror. The flames at first ran over the floor of the shop, but later began to rise. She then made her escape.

Leung Wai-tung, master of the shop, said he was asleep, when he was awakened by a bang. He jumped to his feet and found the place completely alight. He escaped through the back door.

Mr. Stone's Evidence.

Mr. Stone was then called. He said he was the general manager and chief engineer of the Hongkong Gas Company, and had held that position for the last three and a half years. He was formerly engineer in the City of Birmingham Gas Department, and later chief engineer in the Borough of Birkenhead Gas Department. He was an M.C.E. and A.M.I.E.

Dealing with the Gas Company's works, Mr. Stone said that the main works were at West Point. On the North side of Queen's Road there were the general office and manufacturing plant, and on the south side the gas holder and the water gas plant. At West Point he had two small holders connected by a main to the West Point works. These two holders supplied the Peak and to some extent that end of the town. On the Kowloon side, the works were situated in Jordan Road. They had two gasometers there, one of which was built in 1921. He was not quite sure when the other gasometers were built. The West Point gasometer was their biggest holder. It was built in 1908-9, and was put into service in 1910.

The West Point works were under the charge of Mr. Marshall, and the Kowloon works were under Mr. Nicholson. Mr. Goodwin was chief assistant to witness. The Wanchai works were visited from West Point, but no European resided there.

Continuing, Mr. Stone said that on May 14, shortly before 11 a.m. he was in his office at West Point, when his attention was drawn to a dull roaring sound. On looking out of the window, he saw a mass of burning gas sweep over Clarence Terrace, being carried in that direction by the strong wind. He immediately left the office and went to the portion of the works on the South side of Queen's Road. He noticed that the gas holder was deflated.

He climbed on top of the holder, which was just settling down. When he reached the crown of the holder, he noticed the fronts of the houses in Clarence Terrace were on fire. He also noticed that the end house in Chung Shing Street (No. 13) was well alight, the fire being situated in the heart of the premises. His attention was particularly drawn

FOUR LEADING COUNTIES LOSE POINTS

YORKSHIRE SUSTAIN INITIAL DEFEAT OF SEASON

MIDDLESEX LOSE 8 WICKETS FOR 51 RUNS, BUT WIN!

London, June 12. Sussex, Kent, Yorkshire, Surrey, leading counties in the order in the county cricket championship table, all lost points in the course of the programme which came to a close to-day.

Kent, Yorkshire and Surrey were beaten outright while Sussex lost first innings points to Notts.

Middlesex obtained an extraordinary victory over Yorkshire. After leading by 174 runs on the first innings, they had a thrilling scramble to hit off the runs, losing eight wickets before they reached 61, the required number.

Peebles demoralised Yorkshire, capturing 5 for 68 in the first innings, which realised 174, and 7 for 85 in the second, which totalled 229.

Middlesex scored freely in their initial visit to the crease, aggregating 344, of which Hethcote scored 116.

RACE AGAINST CLOCK

Then in a race against the clock, Middlesex went for the runs, and despite wonderful bowling by Bowes, who took 6 for 17, managed to score them with two wickets in hand.

This was Yorkshire's first outright defeat of the season.

Notts and Sussex had a keen fight for first innings lead, finishing in favour of Notts, who scored 331 to the Sussex total of 312.

J. Parks (104) for Sussex and Harris (107) for Notts were the chief run-getters. There was never any hope of a definite decision and Sussex played out time.

Surrey came up against the

INEXPLICABLE COLLAPSE AGAINST GRIMMETT AND O'REILLY

Australia Wins Deservedly After Holding Upper Hand

FORCING the cricket from the opening ball of the day, Australia yesterday magnificently won the first Test match at Nottingham by 238 runs. The whole team responded finely to Woodfull's call for on-the-toes cricket, batsmen in the first hour of the day hitting at everything and thereby scoring rapidly, and bowlers and fielders afterwards throwing the English batsmen into disorder by their high standard work.

AUSTRALIA won deservedly. Apart from the first day's play, they always enjoyed the upper hand. They obtained a grip on the Saturday which they never relaxed, and although yesterday the odds were against them when England went into lunch with 20 runs on the board and all wickets intact, by dint of fine team work they broke down what had been regarded as the best English batting side for years, dismissing them for as small a total as 141.

CHIEF honours go to O'Reilly and Grimmett. They had the Englishmen guessing in both innings. It is significant that both are slow spin bowlers. Not even a crumbling wicket yesterday explains away everything.

ACCORDING to the cables, these bowlers had the batsmen all hitting too late or too early. Only three wickets were clean bowled. Sutcliffe, the Nawab, Hendren, and Geary were all caught in the field. Leyland, Hammond, and Farnes fell victims to Oldfield's vigilance.

A WOODFULL and a Ponsford in England's side yesterday would probably have saved them from defeat. Apart from Leyland, England had no defensive batsmen. Possibly this was just as well. A definite result is much better than a drawn match, which is made drawn by laborious batting on the part of a team.

IN the morning Australia took the only course open. They went for runs and were not concerned how many wickets they lost in getting them. Consequently, a little more than an hour's batting saw 114 added to the overnight total of 159 for 3. Five batsmen sacrificed their wickets in securing these, but it was worth it. England were made to bat half an hour before lunch, which meant that after the adjournment they would face a cut-up wicket.

BROWN alone remained stolid in the morning. McCabe continued his hurricane hitting and quick runs were made by O'Reilly, Darling and Oldfield.

LESLIE Ames, who is no mean footballer, had to thank his experience of the winter game for the catch with which he dismissed Brown. The wicketkeeper failed to hold the ball at the first attempt, but as it was falling to the ground, he kicked it up and caught it on the rebound. Smart and spectacular.

FARNES made his future selection for the Tests a practical certainty. During the match he took ten wickets for 179 runs.

ENGLAND'S "TAIL" AGAIN IN THE LIMELIGHT

SIX WICKETS FALL FOR THIRTY EIGHT RUNS

London, June 12. There were 12,000 spectators present to-day at Trent Bridge for the fourth and last day of the first Test match. The weather was sunny with the wicket wearing.

Brown (47 not out) and McCabe (74 not out) continued Australia's second innings. They took the overnight score of 169 for three wickets in the slips by Hammond off Farnes. He made 88 which included one sixer and 15 boundaries. His innings was unimpeachable and he was at the wicket for one hour and 40 minutes. 181-4.

Darling joined Brown but only remained to score 14 runs when he fell a second victim to Hammond off the Essex fast bowler. 219-5-11. Meanwhile Brown, who was joined by Chipperfield, batted patiently. Chipperfield, however, failed and became the third victim of the Hammond-Farnes combination, being sent back to the pavilion after scoring only four runs. 231-6-4.

AMES' FINE CATCH.

A highlight of the morning's play came when Leslie Ames took a brilliant catch behind the wickets to dismiss Brown who was at the wicket for 205 minutes, scoring 79. Ames appeared to drop the ball but he kicked it up from his toe and brought off an amazing catch. Brown batted stolidly and obviously did not go for the bowling. He hit only three boundaries. 241-7-13.

Oldfield had scored ten runs when O'Reilly skied a ball from Geary which Verity, fielding at backward point, held. 267-8-18.

Grimmett partnered Oldfield and when six more runs had been added, Woodfull declared the innings closed at 12.30 p.m. The score stood at 278 for eight wickets.

CAUTIOUS BEGINNING.

Faced with the task of scoring 380 runs for victory in just over four hours, Walters and Sutcliffe went to the wickets. They batted very cautiously.

Actually the 179 runs are not so important. For a fast bowler to take ten wickets in a match, when on the opposition, it is the slow bowlers who did the damage, is quite sufficient to reveal that bowler's worth.

THE most inexplicable thing about the match was the collapse of the English batsmen before slow bowlers. In past years it has been Australia's speed merchants who have demoralised English batsmen. One has lively recollections of MacDonald and Gregory. The general impression was the English batsmen knew slow bowling too well to be seriously troubled by it unless it was exploited on a glue pot.

TRENT Bridge was never that during this match. Yet the figures of O'Reilly and Grimmett over two innings respectively read:—78.4-40-129-11; 85.3-52-120-8.

IT means that the Australian attack is far more formidable than any of the English critics were prepared to admit when they first saw them in action last month.

BOTH countries have now won twice at Trent Bridge, while two other matches were left drawn. England's second innings total yesterday was the second lowest made on the ground in a completed Test match innings. The lowest was 112, compiled by England in 1921 when Australia won by ten wickets. Yesterday's total is actually the smallest for a second innings.

IN aggregating 647 for their two visits to the crease, the Australians had the distinction of compiling the highest total of runs in two innings in a Test match at Nottingham. The previous best was 616 in two innings by England in 1905.

Australians Try Golf

BRADMAN'S SKILL

London, May 3.

The Australians played their first match yesterday—but at golf, not cricket!

These Test match cricketers went down to the delightful West Kent course at Bickley, near Chislehurst.

Bradman played a good game. This extremely fit young man seems able to play any ball game with the greatest of ease.

After watching him play six holes and never once get into trouble, I came to the conclusion that if cricket did not interest him so much he might very well be a great golfer, writes P. W. Sanderson. And if those games were not enough, I am told he is well above average at lawn tennis and billiards.

Woodfull plays golf as he plays cricket—accuracy and no chances. His long shots are good, without any attempt to get exceptional distance, and on the greens he will never spoil a good score by trying to hole long-distance putts. McCabe and Darling, too, are good.

Woodfull played Verity. It was the last hope. There was not more than a half hour to play. The batsmen were careful. Mitchell scored very slowly. Verity did not score at all.

O'Reilly's bullet-like delivery finished the match, for he took Mitchell's wicket with a leg spinner.

England had lost by 238 runs, with only ten minutes to play before time and the call of a draw.—Reuter.

LEONARDO GAVIA WINS ANOTHER TITLE

PHILIPPINES TENNIS ACE NOW THE TOP OF THE TREE

SECURES CITY CHAMPIONSHIP IN CONVINCING STYLE

Manila, June 28. Leonardo Gavia, Jr., retained the city open tennis championship by defeating Leopoldo Calixto in the finals yesterday afternoon at the Victoria Courts. The scores were 4-6, 7-5, 6-1 and 6-2.

By winning the title yesterday, Gavia earned the right to keep the K. Osawa trophy, emblematic of the city open tennis championship. It was the second time he won the championship. This cup is a two-leg trophy.

The match yesterday turned out to be one of the closest and best fought encounters in the entire tournament. Calixto played inspired tennis, but Gavia's better court generalship won the argument for him.

The first set was won by Calixto by 4-6 count. He started out fine and clinched three games in a row, then slowed up his pace to allow Gavia to knot the count at 3-all. They halved the next two games then Calixto forged ahead by playing sterling tennis and captured the set to the tune of 4-6.

The two fought at break neck pace in the second set, but after a prolonged argument which was featured by Gavia's smashing net attacks and volleys he finally won the set by 7-5 score. Calixto offered him a stiff fight in this set and forced him to extend himself before romping away with the set.

The third set found Gavia playing true to form and allowed his opponent to score only one game. Calixto took the third game after which he was badly outclassed by his rival.

Calixto started the fourth set by taking the first game. He threatened to stage a rally, but Gavia checked him with his beautiful back line shots and accurate placements. Gavia took five games in a row, dropped the seventh and won decisively the eighth game from Calixto and with it the match and the trophy, symbolic of the championship.

JONES GOES TO NOTTS

Charles Jones, the Arsenal and Welsh international half-back, will, after all, become manager for Notts County.

An announcement to this effect recently brought a denial from the Arsenal, who intimated that Jones had entered into an agreement with them.

Jones, who ended his playing career at the close of last season, found himself in the peculiar position of being claimed by two clubs. A long conference followed with the directors of Notts County, who had an interview with the Arsenal board.

As a result Lord Belper, president of Notts County, was able to announce that Jones will immediately take over the management of the club.

Jones started his playing career with Cardiff City, but he was with Nottingham Forest when he transferred to the Arsenal. As a player he was one of the game's great tacticians.

BIG FIGHT ON TO-MORROW

BAER WILL MEET CARNERA

POSTPONEMENT NOW VERY UNLIKELY

New York, June 7. Jack Dempsey and Ancil Hoffman, co-handlers of Max "Modest Maxie" Baer, American challenger for the world's heavyweight championship, to-day announced that they had abandoned the idea of asking for a week's postponement of the bout scheduled for June 14.

Both said that although the challenger could use an extra week of training, he would knock out Carnera, Italian Man Mountain, regardless of the 2-1 odds gamblers are offering today against such a feat.

The United Press learned that the efforts of Commissioners Larry Phelan and J. H. Wear were responsible for the defeat of the postponement idea when placed before the New York Boxing Commission for approval.

Bill Brown, members of the commission, announced earlier to-day that he would recommend a month's postponement of the bout or complete cancellation. He said that his recommendation would be based on the poor physical condition of Baer who has not had a fight in nearly 12 months, since knocking out Max Schmeling, former German titleholder, in the eighth round.

Because of the rumours making the rounds of Cauliflower Alley on the poor condition of the challenger, Carnera to-day picked up from a 9-5 favourite to a 2-1 favourite to win.

The announcement made by Dempsey, co-promoter of the match, and the lively Hoffman, Baer's mentor, means that the bout will proceed as has been scheduled for the past few months.

IN DEFENCE OF PORTSMOUTH'S CUP FINAL TACTICS

WHY LOSERS GAVE UP THE INITIATIVE

MANY ARSENAL CHANGES: NEW BLOOD BEING SOUGHT

"Everyone blames us because we went on the defensive after getting the lead, but the boys had done this in all their other ties, and the tactics had paid. To condemn them now is, in my opinion, unfair. We only lost the match because we lost Allen."

This was the official reply of Portsmouth to the criticism of their policy in the Cup Final with Manchester City, who recovered so gallantly when the match appeared half lost.

All teams have their limitations, and I believe that the scheme which Portsmouth designed was adopted to minimise theirs, writes Frank M. Carruthers in the Daily Mail. Their plan was to strike quickly and win in the first half, and then, when the pace had caused the legs of some of the men to drag wearily, to fall back to obtain a respite from the burden of attack. The loss of Allen was a staggering blow.

VARIED BUT FUTILE.

I have never known a final which produced so many conflicting views as to the teams and the play. In my view it was just an ordinary match representing the standard of football to-day, but thrilling and exciting.

Portsmouth had more variety of movement. In the first half they attacked both down the middle and by means of the wings. Manchester City depended mainly on the ball coming back into the middle by means of the old-fashioned centre, and with Allen towering over Tilson to head it away it seemed a futile policy.

United the strain began to tell. Jack Smith played splendidly as the Portsmouth schemer, but in all-round football ability no one showed the same class as Busby, the Manchester City right half.

Brook with his magnetic enthusiasm, is a great player to have on your side, and it was he who kindled the fire which set the team alight to make their magnificent recovery.

The ball was frequently out of play. One official estimate was that at least a quarter of an hour's football was lost, and that the time had come when there would have to be an alteration of rule to prevent the wastage. But it seemed to me that the ball was thrown back so quickly by the boys engaged for the purpose that the players were not allowed even the short rest they would have liked.

ILLNESSES.

Both clubs held banquets after the match, and it was unfortunate that illness prevented Mr. A. H. Hughes, the chairman of Manchester City, from being present. Mr. C. E. Sutcliffe, a vice-president of the Football Association Council, was taken ill on arriving in London, but he was able to go to Wembley. Mr. Ted Robbins, the secretary of the Welsh F.A., and his wife had to return to Wrexham hurriedly shortly after reaching London owing to the illness of their youngest son.

ARSENAL MATCH.

The Arsenal, with all their vision and enterprise, are making heavy moves to fill in the gaps which must inevitably shortly occur in the team. This is to be seen in the fact that Jack and Jones, both of whom have continued in a first-class form, but it is not their wish to do so.

I think it is likely that Davidson, the 19-year-old inside left of the Scottish club St. Johnstone, will be secured by the Arsenal, but with James again showing such fine form a more urgent need is half-backs.

Negotiations are in progress in respect to three outstanding players—Copping, of Leeds United; Goring, of Bolton Wanderers; and another in the Midlands. It is said that Arsenal will have to pay £2,000 for Copping and as much as five figures for the man who must be nameless. It is scarcely likely that Bolton Wanderers will be tempted to part with Goring if they achieve promotion, as now appears probable.

These are extraordinary prices, but the Arsenal have had a season of unparalleled success, and the fortunes of the club have been made through keeping the team up to the championship standard.

It has been stated that Chelsea do not intend to re-engage Gallagher, who has not appeared in a game since Easter, but I understand that he is to be retained. At the same time I believe the club are prepared to consider offers for his transfer.

BLANK-OUT BY RAIN

AMERICAN LEAGUE POSTPONEMENTS

GIANTS CONTINUE TO WIN

New York, June 12. The programme in the American Baseball League to-day was ruined by rain. Two matches were postponed without a ball being thrown, and in the St. Louis v. New York Yankees encounter, the match had reached the fourth inning, when a downpour brought play to a stop.

The Yankees were then leading three-one, Ruth having homered, and DeGarrms having responded for the Browns. The match was declared null and void.

In the National League, the Giants again chalked up a big score and easily beat Cincinnati Reds, St. Louis Cardinals kept pace with a win over Boston Braves.

MOTOR CYCLING

J. GUTHRIE WINS JUNIOR T.T.

London, June 12. The Isle of Man Junior Tourist Trophy motor cycle race was held yesterday in brilliant weather conditions. Visibility was excellent and a thrilling event was staged only by an accident to H. Handley, who crashed on a Norton and received superficial injuries.

J. Guthrie, riding a 489 Norton, won in the record time of 3 hrs. 20 mins. 14 secs. He covered the seven laps of 37½ miles each at an average speed of 70.16 miles an hour, beating the previous best time of 3 hrs. 23 mins. 20 secs., or 78.08 miles an hour, set up by Stanley Woods last year, when he won from Percy Hunt and J. Guthrie.

J. H. Simpson, also riding a Norton, was second in 3 hrs. 20 mins.

Chelsea F.C. Surprise

PRIESTLEY GOES HOME

Tom Priestley, Chelsea's Irish international inside forward, left London for his home at Belfast without having re-signed, or agreed to re-sign, for his club.

He is uncertain as to his future. "My career as a school teacher means a good deal to me," he explained to a reporter, "and I am not satisfied that I can carry on my profession and at the same time do all that the club require of me."

"I did start teaching in London, but had to give it up when my first stroke of bad luck, an attack of tonsillitis, occurred. But my experience during that period of teaching has made me think hard. I feel that I must talk it over with my father."

Priestley's left eye was heavily bandaged. He has been a most useful player in his first season in London, for after showing promise of much brilliance, he sustained prolonged eye trouble as the result of the entry of dirt under the lid at Sunderland on New Year's Day.

Three operations have been necessary, and Priestley has been told to report to a specialist in Belfast. The medical opinion is that the eye will have completely recovered after two months' rest.

Priestley, who is 22, cost Chelsea a little more than £2,000. The Chelsea XI, that have played in recent matches, together with Law and Odell, have been re-signed.

LAWN BOWLS

RECORD SCORE IN PAIRS TOURNEY

41 SHOTS TO 9

Six matches in the lawn bowls open pairs championship and two fixtures in the open singles championship were decided yesterday afternoon.

A record victory was established by J. Fraser and A. Chapman when they defeated D. Fitches and F. Kelly by 41 shots to nine on the Tai-koon Recreation Club green.

On the Civil Service green, B. W. Bradbury and U. M. Omar defeated their fellow clubmates W. Ward and H. F. Luz by 29 shots to 12.

E. G. Post and G. Perkins had little difficulty in accounting for W. Forrest and W. McHardy on the Indian Recreation Club green by 31 shots to 11.

The winners scored on 15 heads and registered three fours, while the losers scored on six heads. A postponed match in the Singles championship was played off yesterday on the Civil Service green, when H. Hampton defeated A. E. Carcy by 21 shots to 15.

On the Kowloon C.C. green, W. McLeod and W. Mair defeated R. G. Craig and J. Kempton by 20 shots to 18 in a close match. A victory by 21 shots to 10 was gained by V. Petherick and J. Watson when they met A. O. Bravin and B. E. Maughan on the Kowloon Dock green. Leading by 10 shots to one on the 6th head, W. K. Way and A. S. Gomes defeated W. W. Hirst and C. J. Taecht by 22 shots to 14 on the Club de Recreio green. In an open singles championship match T. Ferguson defeated R. Ellis on the Recreio green by 21 shots to 9. The game concluded on the 18th head.

John Poulter's Victory.

It was John Poulter who beat A. F. Paul on the Yacht Club's green on Monday last and not "J. Tolan." Poulter, who plays for the Civil Service C. C., is not an experienced bowler as his opponent, Paul, who plays for the Hongkong Electric and the result was one of the surprises of the competition.

GOLD BOOMING

NEW HIGH LEVEL ANTICIPATED

London, June 12. A fresh outburst of buying, and a keen and speculative demand for gold, resulted in activity on the market to-day and the price of gold was quoted at 137s. 7½d., including a premium of three pence over the dollar, at 5.06, and four pence over the franc, at 76.50 in the pound.

Speculators are confident that gold will reach new high levels, especially if, as many believe he will, President Roosevelt shortly deprecates the U.S. dollar by fifty cents.

Confidence in the future rise of gold explains the strength of gold shares in London and Johannesburg and the demand for francs and other gold currencies.—Reuter.

Staying On Gold.

Berlin, June 12. Germany has no reason to abandon the gold standard, according to official circles. As regards the dollar and gold obligations of private concerns, Government does not contemplate intervention. The settlement of these debts must be left to the people concerned, it is added.

In this connection it is noteworthy that various German debtors have already approached foreign creditors offering redemption or conversion of the dollar bonds at a rate of 2.80 to three marks on the gold dollar.

An understanding between debtors and creditors has not yet been reached and in some cases has been submitted to the German courts.—Reuter Special.

German Trade Hurt.

London, June 12. Owing to the shrinkage of German exports, foreign and Central Banks have accumulated large amounts of marks with the Reichsbank, which they have been

BAKERY GHOST

FOKIS FLEE FROM MOANING DEVIL

Fokis fled in terror from a moaning ghost in a bakery shop in Wellington Street last night.

The apparition had neither head nor legs, frightened little boys told police officers who investigated.

A newspaper reporter, on his round of calls last night, was attracted by the excitement outside the shop. A crowd of men, women and children was gathered there, and the bravest amongst them had their faces close to the grilled door-way.

A little boy led him to the doorway, padlocked on the outside and pointing through the grill exclaimed: "Kwai!" It was a devil, he explained.

Later police investigated and could see nothing, though they did hear a peculiar moaning noise. Curiously enough, a man hanged himself under the stairway of the place a year ago.

Fokis, who were working in the shop during the day, declared they had seen a headless devil. They had fled at once.

selling recently. Thus the rate has been weakened. The intervention of the Reichsbank in the very narrow market would be sufficient to check the decline, however.

The Reichsbank has now decided to suspend for a fortnight from June 9 acceptance of mark payments on special foreign central banks' accounts with the Reichsbank.

This is a most serious blow to Germany's foreign trade, particularly in the matter of imports, for owing to restrictions, a large part of import trade is financed by payments made into such accounts.—Reuter.

N.R.A. ATTACK

NEW INSTALMENT OF DARROW REPORT

Washington, June 12. A new attack on the National Recovery Administration is contained in the second instalment of the Darrow Report issued to-day, the first instalment of which was issued on May 20 and contained a grave indictment of the N.R.A.'s economic policy.

The second portion of the Report characterises as unfair and unreasonable the autocratic practice of arbitrarily altering certain N.R.A. codes between the time they are ratified by the groups affected and the time they are promulgated by President Roosevelt.

Criticism is obviously directed at General Hugh Johnson, N.R.A. Administrator, as the Report contains such expressions as "the military commander of an irresponsible dictatorship."

The Report covers thirteen codes.

Severest Criticism.

The severest criticism is directed at the Boot and Shoe and Lumber Pacts, and it is stated that the insertion of a single clause in the Boot and Shoe Code by some mysterious agency made it possible for monopolistic practices in that industry.

Some fault is found with the Petroleum Code, but the handling of the industry by Mr. Jokes, Secretary for the Interior, is approved.—Reuter.

Known as the National Recovery Review Board, the body under the chairmanship of Mr. Clarence Darrow, the noted attorney, was established by President Roosevelt some time ago and directed to ascertain whether the N.R.A. codes tended to promote monopolies or to eliminate or oppress small enterprises.

BODY IN HARBOUR.

POLICE SUSPECT MURDER IN EARLY REPORT

A murder report was circulated from Mongkok Tsiu Police Station yesterday evening.

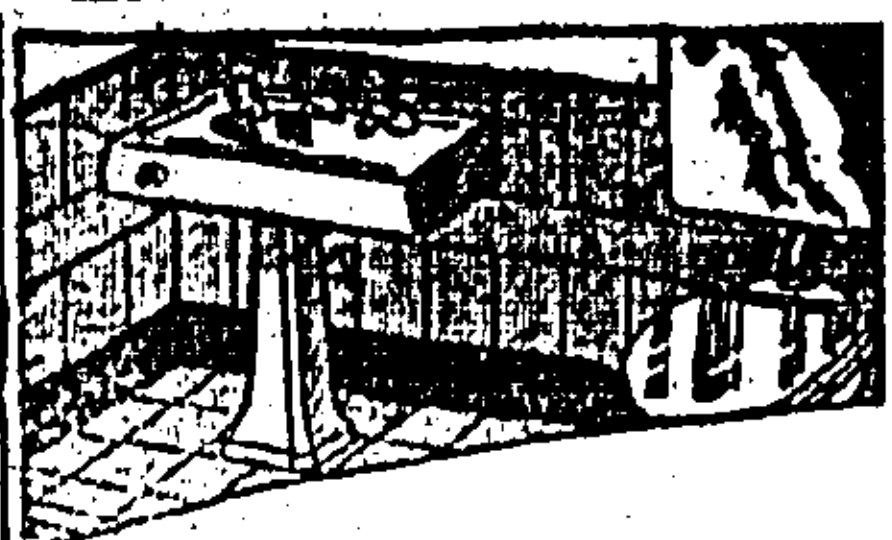

The first report stated that Constable B. 410, Nazar Singh, at about 6.10 p.m. found the body of a Chinese woman, aged about 20 years, floating in the harbour near the Mongkok Ferry Wharf. There was a severe cut on the left arm and other parts of the body were slashed.

The body was dressed in grey striped cotton clothing and white shoes.

A later report stated it was possible the wounds were sustained by the body coming in contact with the propeller of some vessel in the harbour.

KURAMOTO CASE TENSION GROWS

SUPPOSED CLUES NEGATIVE

NO TRACE OF CONSUL'S MOVEMENTS

JAPAN'S NEXT STEP?

Nanking, June 13. Supposed clues to the disappearance of Mr. Kuramoto, the Japanese Vice-Consul, which were discovered in the course of the police search in Nanking, have proved absolutely negative in results.

No fresh developments of any kind have occurred. Mr. Kuramoto seems to have vanished off the face of the earth as by a stroke of a magician's wand.

Not a single one of his movements after leaving the station has been traced.

TENSE ATMOSPHERE.

Meanwhile, the atmosphere has grown much more tense.—Reuter.

Nanking, June 12. Mr. Arino, Secretary of the Japanese Legation, called on the Nanking Foreign Office this afternoon to enquire the results, if any, of the search for Mr. Kuramoto. The Foreign Office were unable to furnish news of any kind but assured him of the Chinese Government's determination to spare no effort in the search.

The Nanking Gendarmerie are starting a fresh comb-out in their search for trace of Mr. Kuramoto. The programme includes a census of the population of the capital and the co-operation of the local authorities in the surrounding districts in combing every village.

The activity is extending to as far as Soochow, Wushih and Chinkiang. But, up to a late hour tonight, the authorities still admit that no tangible clue had been secured.—Central News.

NO PROTEST.

Peking, June 13. A spokesman of the Japanese Legation to-day denied the report that the Japanese Foreign Minister had instructed Mr. Ariyoshi to lodge a strong protest with the Chinese Government regarding the disappearance of Mr. Kuramoto, and declared that the Japanese Government was still maintaining a waiting attitude.—Central News.

TAXI SABOTAGE IN SHANGHAI

FOUR VEHICLES SET ON FIRE

Shanghai, June 13. A grave development in the Shanghai taxi-drivers' dispute with their employers occurred last night, when four taxis were set on fire by an organised arson gang.

Four hire cars, two of which belonged to the British-owned Taylor Garage and the others to the Chinese-managed Johnson Taxi Service were set on fire by the use of phosphorus, almost simultaneously in different parts of the Settlement. The vehicles were stopped by the arson gangs and set on fire. Two chauffeurs were injured as a result of their activities and the vehicles suffered considerable damage.

The Settlement Police are now engaged on an intensive search for the incendiaries, who are believed to have been the leading spirits in the strike of the Chinese drivers of the Taylor Garage which started a few weeks ago and which up to the present time has failed to produce a settlement.—Reuter.

HIND COLLECTION STAMP SALE

RECORD PRICES IN LONDON

(Special to "Telegraph")

(By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic Message Ordinance, 1891. Received June 13, 12.55 a.m.)

London, June 12. Bond Street's first test of a stamp selling bourse has proved an immense success.

Record prices have been obtained in the sale, which has been proceeding of the famous Hind collection at Harmer's.

Twenty thousand pounds were bid in the auction for certain Mauritius specimens in less than ten minutes, and a few minutes later the sales had realised over £47,000.

One Mauritius envelope started at £3,000 and finally fetched £5,000, at which price the auctioneer declared it to be the greatest bargain in the sale.

Penny Orange Free State stamps were sold for £2,500.

The buyers were representative of every country in Europe, America and South Africa.

The Hind Collection was left by a deceased American millionaire.—Reuter Special.

Sofia, June 13. In issuing a decree to-day for the suppression of all political parties and publications, and also bringing the entire Press of the country under the control of a newly-created Social Revival Institute, the new Fascist Premier, Colonel Gheorghiev, informed newspaper correspondents that the Bulgarian Government is determined to reorganise the country on an entirely new basis, breaking completely with the past and the bases of party strife.—United Press.

CHEMIST'S SECRET AND U.S. AIR DISASTER

STARTLING THEORY OF TRAGEDY

SEVEN KILLED BY EXPLOSION

HUSH-HUSH BY U.S. NAVY

(Special to "Telegraph")

(By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic Message Ordinance, 1891. Received June 13, 12.55 p.m.)

New York, June 12. Was the Newark-Chicago airliner disaster caused by the explosion of a secret chemical mixture in the possession of one of the passengers?

This sensational possibility has been opened up as the result of an expert examination of the wreckage and the property of the victims.

It is revealed that a prominent chemist who is believed to have been engaged for the Government on important experiments with explosives was among the victims.

KILLED BY EXPLOSION.

The Coroner in the little township of Liberty, New York State, Mr. Victor Burke, stated to-day that a terrific explosion killed the seven persons in the wrecked machine.

It is expected that at to-morrow's inquest on the victims, he will ask experts whether gasoline or the mysterious contents of a bag in the possession of a chemist named E. W. Bader, employed by the Semmesolvey Company, was responsible for the explosion.

BAG BLOWN TO BITS.

Some significance is attached to the fact that one of Mr. Bader's bags was blown to bits. The second, which was recovered from the wreck, contained bottles of fluid and also formulas, which, the Coroner intimated, the United States Navy Department had informed him they were most anxious to keep secret.—United Press.

VAST EXPANSION OF R.A.F.

PLANES FOR 600 NEW PLANES

London, June 13. A great expansion in the ground and air strength of the Royal Air Force is now seriously contemplated by the Government.

Following up the recent pledges by Mr. Stanley Baldwin that Britain will seek parity in the air with the greatest air power with striking distance of Britain's shores, if no limitation agreement can be obtained, the Air Ministry is preparing plans, under instruction, for substantial expansion of the R.A.F.

These are expected to be submitted to the Cabinet shortly.

The scheme is likely to provide for the addition of at least fifty new squadrons to the Air Force, equivalent to about six hundred first-line machines.

GREAT INCREASES.

There will be twenty new R.A.F. aerodromes and a great increase in personnel.

The scheme will be carried out over a period of years, not yet specifically settled.

Excluding a hundred machines in India, Britain has now about eight hundred first-line and about 130 second-line aircraft.

It is contemplated that the additions will place Britain on approximately parity with France.—Reuter.

JAPAN'S MISFIRE IN MEXICO

NO RECOGNITION OF MANCHUKUO

THE ESTRADA DOCTRINE

(Special to "Telegraph")

(By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic Message Ordinance, 1891. Received June 13, 10.55 a.m.)

New York, June 12. Japanese diplomatic pressure in different parts of Central and South America designed to induce recognition of Manchukuo, after the example of Salvador, have broken down in Mexico.

It is learned that the Japanese Minister, Mr. Yoshitsugu Hori, unsuccessfully sought to secure Mexican recognition of Manchukuo on the basis of the Mexican Estrada Doctrine.

The doctrine provides for the recognition by Mexico of the governments of friendly countries even though they may be of revolutionary origin.

Officials of the Mexican Foreign Office informed Mr. Hori that the Estrada Doctrine applied only to established countries and cannot be extended to newly-formed States such as Manchukuo.—United Press.

KING LEOPOLD'S ACCESSION

MISSION ARRIVES IN LONDON

London, June 12. The Duc d'Ursel, head of the special mission to announce the accession of the King of the Belgians, arrived in London this afternoon. The mission was met by Major General Sir John Hanbury Williams, Marshal of the Diplomatic Corps, Admiral Sir Henry Buller, specially attached representative of the Foreign Secretary and the Belgian Ambassador and his staff.

The special envoy will be received by the King at Buckingham Palace to-morrow morning. In the afternoon, he will lay a wreath on the Cenotaph.

On Thursday, members of the mission will be entertained to luncheon by Their Majesties and will be guests at a Government dinner given in their honour at the Foreign Office.—British Wireless.

POLICE RUSHED TO SENATE

UPROARIOUS TUGWELL SITTING

APPOINTMENT ENDORSED

Washington, June 12.

Extraordinary scenes were witnessed in the Senate to-day during the battle over the appointment of Professor Rexford Tugwell as Under-Secretary of Agriculture.

Police were rushed to the chamber during an uproarious sitting of the Agricultural Committee of the Senate which continued its debate on President Roosevelt's nomination of Professor Tugwell for promotion to Under-Secretary.

Several of the Senators nearly came to blows but quiet was at length restored.

And in the end, Professor Tugwell secured endorsement of the nomination.

PROFESSOR'S DENIALS.

Mr. Tugwell was again before the Committee, being questioned at considerable length on his political outlook. He repeatedly denied that he wished to Sovietise the United States and avowed his belief in the Constitution and the recovery measures taken by the President.

His nomination to higher office, which is taken as an indication of little importance to the charges made in March last that the Brains Trust has been planning to replace the existing social order by Communism, was eventually approved by sixteen votes to two.

STRONGER POSITION

(Special to "Telegraph")

(By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic Message Ordinance, 1891. Received June 13, 10.55 a.m.)

Washington, June 12. Senator Smith and Senator Hatfield were the only opponents of Professor Tugwell's promotion when the debate in the Agricultural Committee concluded.

The action is really tantamount to raising Professor Tugwell's annual salary from $7,500 to $10,000.

Observers believe that the hearing has strengthened Dr. Tugwell's position.—United Press.

(By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic Message Ordinance, 1891. Received June 13, 8.45 a.m.)

Capetown, June 12. Disregarding the war debts controversy abroad, South Africa has paid £179,000, the regular half-yearly war debt instalment to Britain.—Reuter.

WAR DEBTS ONUS ON BRITAIN

AMERICAN REPLY TO NOTE

FURTHER STUDY INVITED

London, June 12.

Britain's war debt Note to the United States has resulted in a reply inviting reconsideration of the decision to make no payment, and suggesting that the amount due on June 15 might be paid, without worrying about the arrears.

The Reply says that if Britain pays the June 15 instalment of $85,670,000 (approximately £18,000,000) she will remain outside the scope of the Johnson Act.

Should Britain submit proposals for the resumption of payments, the United States would gladly discuss them.

The Note also says that no proposal has ever been presented for payment in kind to an extent that might be found mutually practicable. Any such proposal would be carefully considered.

U.S. AND DEBTS GENERALLY.

The United States Government reiterates the thesis of the complete independence of the debts of the Allies to Great Britain and Britain's debts to the United States, and declares that the repayment of the British debts was never made contingent on the fate of other debts.

The Note adds that the position seems to be that Britain does not intend to pay further until the debts have been scaled down to an unascertained sum to which Britain might agree.

DEBTOR'S BUSINESS.

Such a situation calls for the initiation of proposals by the debtor, not the creditor.

The Reply notes that Britain does not intend to repudiate and concludes that the American people are not disposed to place an impossible burden upon their debtors.—Reuter.

BARCELONA SEETHING

INDEPENDENCE MAY BE PROCLAIMED

DEFIANCE OF MADRID

Barcelona, June 13. All troops in Barcelona have been confined to barracks under a stand-by order and all public buildings are guarded by shock-troops owing to a grave situation caused by a dispute with the Central Government over the new Catalan land law.

Catalonia is seething with revolt against the Madrid Government, adding greatly to the problems presented by the mass peasant strike in Badajoz and the widespread Socialist unrest.

The only topic of discussion in Barcelona to-day is the possibility of the proclamation of a Catalan Republic.

It will be recalled that after the ousting of King Alfonso, the Catalans were granted virtual autonomy by the Republican Government in Madrid.

SPANISH FLAG REMOVED.

A huge crowd gathered outside the Parliament Buildings in Barcelona yesterday afternoon, shouting "Long Live the Catalan Republic. Death to Traitors."

The Spanish flag was removed from the President's motor-car and from Parliament buildings in order to calm the passions of the crowds.

FORCE FIRST.

The President of Catalonia declared that the Central Government must have to use force to prevent the enforcement of the land law.

The land law, as passed by the Catalan Parliament, nullifies all contracts with landlords whereby farmers undertake to pay the land taxes and other dues.

MADRID DECISION.

The law was recently referred to the Central Government Tribunal which declared the measure null and void, upon which thirty-six deputies from Catalonia, the Catalan Federalists, the Socialists and the Basque Nationalists, walked out of the Cortes declaring that they would not return unless the central government modified its attitude.—Reuter.

CHAPTER XXIV

Derek said, "We haven't had a quiet evening at home for weeks." He said, "I'm tired of this everlasting merry-go-round. Let's get some of it."

Lila frowned, the expression causing her smooth white forehead into unbecoming ridges. And she did so hate to frown! But Derek was being tiresome. What else was there to do besides what they already did?

"Don't be stupid," she said airily. She was sitting at her dressing table, a sheer lace and satin jacket thrown on over her fitted creamy slip. Her stockings were sheer; her sandals were fashioned of gilded straps. Her yellow hair was smooth as satin except where it sprang, just below the temple, into two deep, adroit waves.

"Don't be idiotic, darling," she said, arching her neck to enjoy the lovely line in the mirror. "Anyone'd think you were 60 and goutish. It's a lovely party to-night."

"It's always a lovely party," Derek told her, looking more annoyed than ever. "And what happens? We dine, dance with the same people, see the same plays, laugh at the same deadly jokes. Just, sometimes I feel as if I were on one of those Concy Island ferries wheels and couldn't get off."

"Well, that's perfectly silly of you, and I don't know what you're talking about." Usually when she talked like this Lila disposed of her husband's "mullish" moods. To-night he was different. He was not to be won back to tractability by smiles and scoldings. He persisted in his attitude of discontent.

"It's this beastly way of living," he complained. "In a rabbit warren, with all the rest of the animals. Now if we had a house in the country and a couple of children."

"A couple? I like that!" Lila, offended by the thought of even one baby, allowed her tinkling laugh to sound at this preposterous notion.

"I'd like a house, a more simple, solid way of living," Derek said stubbornly. "I'd like kids. Wouldn't you?"

Lila threw out her hands. "Of course, darling," she agreed, all sweet reasonableness. "Of course, but later. Not now. We're young! We must amuse ourselves. In five years . . . in ten, perhaps."

He set his jaw stubbornly. Lila had seen him in this mood once or twice before. He was not to be budged.

"I'm not going to-night, anyway," he said. "I've got a beastly cold. Been feeling rotten all day. And I have a heavy morning with a client to-morrow."

She stared at him, eyes narrowed. "Oh, very well, then!" She turned back to her dressing table.

Derek's eyes lighted with triumph. It wasn't often Lila was so amenable. She was sweet, really. He wanted to put his arms around her, to bury his face in the softness of her hair, to tell her all the pretty things she used to like to hear but was busy to listen to nowadays.

But before he could say a word she reached for the white and gilt telephone on the low table beside her. She gave a number. Derek, frowning, waited.

"That you, Marko? Yes, Lila. Derek's feeling scaly. You're going to the Martine to-night aren't you? Well, be a lamb and drop by for me. Thanks so much. About 10."

She hung up. "That's that," she said gaily. "I wouldn't miss those Russian dancers for worlds. Run along, darling. I told Koto dinner at eight and it's almost that now."

Derek stood up. He had got his way—that is, partly, and yet he wasn't satisfied. Of course it was perfectly all right for Lila to go to the Martine party with Marko. Why not? But he had so hoped she'd give the affair up for him. It was such a little thing to do.

Still nursing that sense of bafflement, of defeat, Derek went to his own room. He ran his hand over his chin. He must shave and change and, oh, God, he was so tired! What wouldn't he give for a bite by his own fire, a woman opposite him with a quiet voice, in a dark gown? Lila scarcely ever wore dark things except for street wear. In the evening she was always slim, supple and perfumed, her hair exquisitely coiffed, her skin gleaming. She wore silver tassels and gilt, creamy lace. Soft fabrics rustled deliciously at her approach and soft scents lingered on the air.

Almost like a man in a daze, he dressed for dinner. The meal was, as always, perfectly served; the food piquant, delicious. But something was missing. Derek found himself muttering under his breath, "Better a dish of herbs where love is . . . But he couldn't remember the rest."

"What did you say, darling?" Lila looked at him oddly.

"Nothing. Nothing." He pulled himself up with a start.

Later he punctiliously pulled out her chair for her, waited while she preceded him into the dim drawing room and lighted her cigarette. Rain was falling over the city now, splashing against the windows in black rivulets. He shivered. The cold which had seized him earlier in the day took a firmer grip upon him. He felt ill . . . miserable.

Lila turned on the radio and the music sickened him. He must be definitely ill, he told himself savagely, to be in such a ghastly frame of mind. He tried to pull himself together, to be chatty and casual, but he felt his effort to be a decided failure.

For her part, Lila seemed not to notice and he was grateful. There was something to be said about Lila's determined effort to live on the surface of life. People like that—people who insisted on the gracious, the luxurious, in everything—were rather easy to live with if all you wanted was creature comfort, he thought. But with his whole soul he found himself longing for something beyond and apart from all these soft cushions, shaded lights and clinking glasses. He hoped he wasn't whining about being "misunderstood." No, his need was deeper and more fundamental than that. It had something to do with home . . . with the old-fashioned interpretation of the word.

"Home is where the heart is," Derek murmured, staring at his cordial glass, tipping it until he could see the poisonous green lights flash in its depth. "Home," he told his wife gravely, "is where you hang your hat."

She flashed him a puzzled, an unvoiced glance. "Derek, I do believe you're tight."

"Sorry, darling." He bowed to her. Koto slipped by to answer Marko's ring. A moment later Broughton was in the room, big, masculine, smiling, exuding the familiar sense of power. Derek, who was all loyalty to his employer, felt an emotion almost of dislike for Marko at the moment.

"Derek's rocky," Lila explained further. "Touch of flu, I think." She went to get her wrap and to add the little touches her makeup required at the last moment. She was beautiful to-night. Both men

CINEMA SCREENINGS

NOTES SUPPLIED BY THE THEATRES

Cary Grant, Benita Hume, Jack La Rue, Glenda Farrell and Roscoe Karns are featured in Paramount's high-tension "Gambling Ship", which opens to-day at the Alhambra Theatre. It was directed by Louis Gasnier and Max Marcin. It's the startling story of these brilliantly lighted vessels that link up the law three miles off the West Coast, selling exhilaration to the fabled thrill-seekers. Here, where anything goes and everybody goes to do it, modern racketeers take on the manners and methods of the pirates of the old days running their stock places of high-stakes on the high-seas. Grant is splendidly cast in the role of a big-city racketeer who takes on the management of one of these joy palaces to help a friend in trouble with the rival captain of another gambling ship. In the savage war that takes place between the two, are packed thrills and more thrills. The moment Grant takes charge it is war to the death, and only death, in a furious storm that wrecks the ships, puts an end of the war and brings a grand romance to a fitting conclusion. If you like a high, wide and handsome action drama, in the new manner with a superlative cast, by all means, see "Gambling Ship". It's an exciting show.

"Jimmy and Sally"
The James Dunn hobby is speed. In fact if he were to be given a middle name, "Speed" would be quite appropriate. He is a regular attendant at the automobile races in and near Hollywood because he likes to see automobiles going places in a hurry. To him a speeding car tearing along at top speed is the very spirit of the age. He says nothing has moved faster, however, than the three years and some odd months since he arrived in Hollywood from New York to play the lead in "Bad Girl". He's made more than a dozen pictures since then, the newest being pictures written around his own personality, "Jimmy and Sally", the Fox Film production coming to the King's Theatre on Thursday. Claire Trevor, who plays the leading feminine role opposite Jimmy, is the type of girl he favours. Other members of the cast are Harvey Stephens, Lynn Lys, Jed Prouty, Gloria Roy, Alma Lloyd and John Arledge. This comedy with music was directed by James Frawley from the screen play by Paul Schofield and Marguerite Roberts. The two hit songs of the picture are, "It's The Irish in Me" and "You're My Thrill". Dunn singing the former and Lynn Lys warbling the latter.

"Smoky"
Victor Jory, young Fox Film star, whose colourful career has included prize-fighting and pie and shovel work is a one-finger piano player. Although he cannot read music, he has composed the words and melodies of three successful songs. They are: "Without You", "Sundown Trail" and "You'll Never Miss the Sunshine". He whistles the tunes, and then gets someone else to write them in terms of music. Anyway, it works. Jory's new stellar role for Fox is in "Smoky", the film version of Will James' story of the same name, currently showing at the King's Theatre.

"Parlor, Bedroom and Bath"
"Parlor, Bedroom and Bath", which had audiences roaring when it was presented at the Republic Theatre in New York as the most hilarious farce comedy in the history of the stage, now comes to the screen as a vehicle for the inimitable Buster Keaton. Here is a role that fits the straight-faced comedian perfectly. He depicts a shy and reticent bill-poster who through no efforts of his own achieves the reputation of a "great lover". In a desperate attempt to uphold this reputation he becomes involved in an uproarious series of amorous affairs which are brought to a swift conclusion when the jealous husband appears on the scene with a gun. Keaton's antics start the laughs rolling and they are kept rolling by the rest of the imposing cast, which includes the jinky Charlotte Greenwood, who scored on the stage in the original role; Reginald Denny, Cliff Edwards, Dorothy Christy, Joan Peer, Sally Eilers, Natalie Moorhead, Edward Brophy, Walter Merrill and Sidney Bracey.

"We're Not Dressing"
South Sea island adventure, jungle love, and chortling comedy feature the scenes of Paramount's "We're Not Dressing", the climax of Bing Crosby's long list of entertainment achievements which opens on Saturday at the Alhambra Theatre. Carole Lombard, George Burns and Gracie Allen, Ethel Merman, Leon Errol, and a strong supporting cast, joined hands and voices with Crosby to make his Paramount vehicle sixty minutes of unequalled action and melody. Bing Crosby portrays a two-fisted sea-faring man with a voice and heart of gold, who works aboard the yacht of Miss Lombard. The ship sinks, but Crosby and Miss Lombard escape, along with the heiress' guests—Miss Merman, Errol and the fortune-seeking prince, Lay Henry and Ray Milner. They all paddle their way to a South Sea island and there—suddenly jerked from the lap of luxury—attempt to wrest a living from nature. How Bing puts them to work, and how Miss Lombard discovers, on the other side of the island, the camp of George Burns and Gracie Allen, big-game hunters, builds a climax which brings them all together in a tumult of thrills, laughs and songs. Song hits for Crosby were written by the Paramount team of Mack Gordon and Harry Revel. Equally catchy numbers by Miss Merman, give the picture more than its share of melody. Director Norman Taurog has turned in a directorial job that stamps the picture the best on his long list of successes. He brings Crosby forth as an equally fine actor and singer; allows Burns and Allen simple opportunity for their laugh-provoking action and chatter and injects a swift-moving tone into the entire picture. Horace Marion, Jr., adapted the screen play from a story by Benjamin Glazer.

NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE

YESTERDAY'S MARKET ACTIVE

According to Messrs. Swan, Culbertson and Fritz, the New York market was active yesterday. Business done 950,000 shares. The Wall Street Journal reports: The market was upward and active, mostly due to the strength of grains, especially corn, which spurred more than 3 cents due to reports of insect ravages aggravated by drought damage, which added mail-orders and farm-equipment shares, afterwards spreading through the list. Curb shares were upward due to a demand for oil shares. Bonds were upward due to the strength of stocks.

Messrs. Swan, Culbertson and Fritz, New York office reports: Stocks were more aggressively bid for, with more metal and rail issues the most popular. Wheat: There has been a general transfer of interest to corn. The general situation is unchanged and the main support to be over. Cotton: Unfavorable weather reports were the principal feature in the advance. The New York Cotton Exchange estimate of domestic consumption for May amounts to 535,000 bales. Continued activity in export demand, and a notable scarcity of offerings on an early decline were contributing factors to the advance. Rubber: Prices advanced on strong trade buying, both in London and in London. The undertone was very firm.

THE BLACK SHIRT MENACE

The hint by Sir John Gilmour that the Government is not disposed to tolerate the methods of the Mosley Black Shirts much longer is satisfactory so far as it goes, but the situation which has developed would appear to call for prompt and definite action. The fact is now well established that the British Fascists, when dealing with political opponents, overstep the necessities by taking it upon themselves to usurp the functions of the police. Such tactics cannot be tolerated. Like all political units, the Black Shirts must expect to encounter opposition, the more so when they present their case in such a manner as to invite retaliation. Sir Oswald Mosley, in seeking to make a case for his minions, has pointed to the fact that the Black Shirts are not the only people who appear in public in uniform—he has even cited the Boy Scouts and the Salvation Army! But the point which he conveniently ignores is that these are not political bodies, seeking to thrust their opinions on other people. Moreover, it is not so much a question of the use of a distinctive uniform by the Mosleyites as the idea at the back of its use. The Black Shirts are without question a semi-military organisation, and what is more, most of their activities are modelled on that basis. Their methods are totally foreign to British political tradition, and it is therefore hardly to be wondered at that a growing resentment against the movement should manifest itself. The mischief is that if action is not soon taken, we may soon see rival bodies, working on similar lines, come into being. The possibilities in such a situation are too serious to be lightly disposed of. The eventual upshot might be armed clashes, accompanied by bloodshed, all over the country. And the point to be kept in mind is that such a catastrophic state of affairs would be directly attributable to the Mosley venture. The plain fact is that there is no room in England for such a madcap creation as the Black Shirt organisation or for the methods which it typifies. Therefore, the sooner it is brought under control and shorn of its worst features, the better will it be for the country as a whole. Far too much latitude has been already permitted; the time for firm and definite action has arrived. It is to be hoped that the Government will have the courage to suppress the movement without further ado.

NOTES OF THE DAY

ORDEAL BY SENATE

Professor Tugwell has successfully ridden out the storm and has been accepted as Under-Secretary of Agriculture. But he had anxious moments and there will be many observers in the United States who will associate his denial of a radical political creed with those of Peter Dr. Tugwell's views have been the subject of more speculation and dispute than those of any other individual closely connected with the New Deal and the Brains Trust. Critics denounce him as the master-mind of a revolution and others see in him the prophet of a new era. The mischief of the ado about his personal viewpoint is that his value to the Administration must suffer, as an ulterior motive will always be sought for in any of his recommendations. It was destructive over-publicity that lost the advice of Professor Moley to President Roosevelt.

THE TEST

There can be no quarrel with the verdict of the First Test, although it worked itself out in curious ways. Australia were superior in nearly every department, for although their most boosted batsmen did comparatively little, they were not dragging behind them an unsupportable tail. The outstanding personalities were Chipperfield, who gloriously justified his last-minute selection by a brilliant 99 in the first innings, and superb work in the field. McCallum, who rescued Australia in both innings, and Grimmett, who brought solace to the England XI brought solace to the selectors. Hendren did well in the first innings and Sutcliffe sufficiently well in both to indicate that he cannot be left out, but there is a large question mark against several others. Some mitigating circumstances there were, of course. A crumbling wicket with four hours and fifty minutes of play and two spin bowlers of the quality of O'Reilly and Grimmett, meant that ability to hold out was doubtful from the outset of the innings. It would, however, have been unfortunate if Australia had been robbed by time of a well-earned victory.

WOMEN IN THE CIVIL SERVICE

The prolonged struggle of British feminists to secure "equal rights with men" has diminished in intensity as one position after another has been surrendered to them. They have won the full right to vote in parliamentary elections, to sit in Parliament, to plead at the bar, to serve on juries, and to enter the civil service (excepting the defence services and the diplomatic and consular services), and they have acquired equal rights in regard to divorce and the ownership of property. But there is one disqualification which they have hitherto laboured in vain to remove—women in all branches of the civil service are required to resign on marriage. This limitation is now likely to be modified in view of a report issued by a joint committee of official and staff representatives set up to consider the recommendations of a Royal Commission.

COMPROMISE PLAN

Women in the higher branches of the service complained that the rule constituted an interference on the part of the State with the private lives of employees; that as long as they remained efficient the employer had no right to inquire whether they were married or single. For some years the feminist organisations, with a few remaining worlds to conquer, have concentrated their efforts on removing the ban on married women. The decision arrived at is a compromise. A married woman may be retained or recruited if her employment is advisable in the light of her special qualifications or of the special requirements of the department in which she is serving. Moreover the regulations are to be framed so that the privilege is to be a reality, and not accorded only under very exceptional conditions.

THE SPIRIT

No doubt much will depend on the spirit in which heads of departments interpret the rule; but the result will probably be that clever women who succeed in entering the civil service will be able to feel that so long as they work hard and remain efficient they will have no reason to fear dismissal. They come near to obtaining the coveted equality with men; and it will be observed that here, as in certain other respects, they will actually gain certain advantages not enjoyed by men—for they may still draw the marriage gratuity, if they retire, and, if they remain, will be entitled to two months' maternity leave on full pay. Thus all along the line in Great Britain the legal obstacles to women's equality of opportunity are being removed.

SOCIALIST FORCES IN BRITAIN

By R. A. SCOTT JAMES

IN RECENT by-elections in Great Britain the Labour Party has considerably increased its polls as compared with the 1931 general election; but there is as yet no indication whatever that the tide has turned strongly against the National Government. A powerful factor which from the first has favoured the National Government continues to handicap the Labour Party—fear of that shadowy entity known as Socialism. It is shadowy because it is so variously defined; and there are as many kinds of Socialist policy as there are groups of Socialists. As expounded by some it means the class war; for others it necessitates a constitutional revolution; and for others it indicates no more than a progress by slow stages toward the Socialist ideal. In some of its aspects there is nothing to terrify the bourgeois mind; in others it appears to mean the end of the existing form of civilization. If there were reasonable certainty as to what the triumph of the Socialists would mean, there might be less apprehension as to what would be involved in a defeat of the National Government.

This confusion of thought is the more intelligible when we realize that there are four political Socialist organizations in Great Britain, two within the fold of the Labour Party, and two outside it. The noisiest are not necessarily the most influential. On the extreme Left is the Communist Party, acknowledging allegiance only to the Third International of Moscow. No need to state here their purpose and policy. They are non-national; they are uncompromising; they are the disciplined instruments of dogmatic Communism at headquarters; they are for revolution and the destruction of the present regime and the present prevailing state of mind by any means whatsoever. In Britain their numbers are few, and they are not strong enough to win a single seat in Parliament.

Next to them, toward the Right, though still far to the Left, is the Independent Labour Party. This organization existed before the Labour Party itself. For more than a third of a century it has been the nucleus of the Labour Socialist movement in the country, and many of the most conspicuous Labour politicians, including Mr. Ramsay MacDonald himself, have been among its members. But in recent years it has moved much farther toward the Left, and about two years ago it completely severed its once-treasured connection with the official Labour Party.

Now no person can be a member both of the Labour Party and the I. L. P. Its ultimate political and economic objects are similar to those of the Communists. It believes in the possibility of sudden revolution, and favours the method of attempting to sow the seeds of revolutionary thought among the workers, and it would like to establish a united front with Communism. But it refuses to accept orders from Moscow or from any outside organization, and it carefully refrains from advocating violence or illegality. Its leader is that able, popular, and much respected Member of Parliament, Mr. James Maxton.

The I. L. P. to-day is far weaker than it was a few years ago, and lost a great part of its membership when it decided to cut itself off from the official Labour Party. About one-half of its members seceded, including its most brilliant intellectuals, and formed a new body called the Socialist League, whose members are still within the circle of official Labour. The latter's most conspicuous leader is that most vocal of all British Labour politicians, Sir Stafford Cripps, a member of the last Labour Cabinet; and his right-hand man is Sir Charles Trevelyan, son of the historian. Sir Stafford has sprung into world-wide fame as "dictatorship Cripps," in view of his insistent statements which have been interpreted to mean that the next Socialist Government was prepared, in the last resort, if resisted by a recalcitrant House of Lords or a refractory Opposition, to set up a Labour dictatorship. The distinguishing feature in the policy of the league is its determination to implement the whole policy of state Socialism, including the nationalization of the banks, by one swift legislative stroke. Its aim is to alter the whole economic system of Great Britain during the life of a single Parliament.

The out-and-out declarations of the Socialist League have aroused much enthusiasm among the younger and more ardent Socialists throughout the country. They are logical and consistent in their arguments, and fiery in their appeal. Their is a programme which attracts the leftward-moving minds of those who believe in hastening toward their objectives. Its members are potent influences within the Labour Party. But they are not the Labour Party itself. Their organization is almost without funds. They have no machinery for running separate candidates for Parliament. They have no representatives on the executive of the party machine.

The official Labour Party, the central organization which is on the Right of the Socialist movement, controls the machinery at headquarters, and in the constituency, and holds the purse strings. Its strength rests on the trades unions, whose funds provide the sinews of war and whose powerful organizations are the mainstay of the British Labour movement. The trades unionists as a body are tenacious of their traditions and conservative in their moderate-Socialist views. Thus supported, the official Labour Party is opposed to dictatorships, dislikes revolution, prefers the approach to Socialism by gradual methods, and declares its faith in democracy.

Such are the various Socialist forces which are arrayed against the National Government. It is at present the moderate official organization which controls the political opposition. There is no fear of the Communists; no fear of the Independent Labour Party; but since no one is quite certain how far the Socialist League may be able to assert its vigorous influence within the Labour Party, the shadow of a menacing uncertainty darkens the reputation of the political Labour movement among those who fear revolution.

The Very Idea!

ABOUT MADGE'S LEG

By George
"The Golden Candarin".

(N) Our readers held in breathless suspense while Jeejeebhoy takes an eyeful of himself in his little pocket mirror. We asked then, what did Jeejeebhoy see in the mirror?

You must have guessed the answer by now, so we will pass on to the story. In reply to the irate readers whose letters arrived to-day we repeat that all the characters in this soul-absorbing serial are entirely fictitious. Nobody could possibly guess who we mean and if they did they would not like to say so.

To 'Millicent' who wrote asking us to make Madge lose a leg, we have to point out that we have already planned Madge's life with two legs but we might, and it opportune later to have Jeejeebhoy run over by a riksha. Perhaps readers would like to express their views on this subject; if so we should be glad if they would advise us whether an operation for appendicitis would give Madge some sex appeal or whether she should develop a hump. Readers who are not up to date with previous instalments of our serial can read here the last paragraph of yesterday's which is good enough to be repeated anyway.

"Meanwhile Reginald, clad in a beautiful gown of diaphanous material, was strolling along the Praya whistling softly to the fish as they came to the surface to take an occasional breath. Now and then he took a little make-up box from his intimate pocket and had a peep at himself."

(One reader wrote saying that he had never heard of a man with an intimate pocket, but you must remember that Jeejeebhoy is still unmarried. Incidentally it will go strongly against our conscience to marry him at all, especially to Madge who is essentially a man's woman. By this we mean that you couldn't hit her with a beam of light, or with a gun, or with a bomb, or with the story, or grip your teeth and read below.)

THIRD INSTALMENT.

peep at himself. Reginald paused awhile to watch the bamboos shoot and the sampans straining easily before the typhoon. It was an entertaining spectacle but Jeejeebhoy shared it alone for apart from a few trucks, trams, buses, cars, rickshas, chairs, Sanitary Department vehicles, a fire-engine, coolies, fishers, godown-men, and a host of people, he stood alone upon the deserted Praya.

He knew that Madge would be waiting for him and it was perhaps a streak of cynicism or feminine contrariness that made him linger in the cool air.

(Why does Jeejeebhoy linger in the cool air? Has he got the "Hongkong dog" and if so what will be the effect on Madge when we do get them together? You will remember that we left Madge spitting over the verandah but we intend to put a stop to that to-morrow. Have a little patience folks, the plot thickens. Jeejeebhoy will definitely startle you on Thursday which is Madge's washing day.)

LESSONS IN JOURNALISM.

An editor is the last word in newspaper work and for this reason can never be accused of speaking out of turn. Regrettably enough, too, he is often the last straw.

Every reporter starts by being an editor until he is pulled up; then he starts becoming a reporter and generally remains becoming.

A man of firm decision, an editor must know when to say "When." It is the lack of this decision that had ruined many a potential editor whilst still in the cup—or rather cub—stage.

It is considered ungentlemanly for the head of a newspaper to swear at his subordinates, which explains why many of them die at their desks from repression. The fact that most of them are bald saves them from tearing their hair out all conscientious editors chew their nails whilst receiving visitors, to show that they are busy but can still do two things at the same time.

Editors' words are final and often unprintable but they all attain the same high standard of wisdom as borne out by their leaders which sometimes read word for word the same. Still by cribbing his copy, the Editor breaks a hard and fast rule for other members of the staff and this strikes a note of originality.

"Now, driver, don't take your eyes off little Mary Belle."

DENTAL CREAM
TRADE MARKFIVE FIRMS ACCUSED OF INFRINGEMENT

Five retailers were summoned before Mr. Hamilton at the Central Magistracy this morning for possession of brands of dental cream bearing trade marks which were calculated to deceive. The complainants were the Colgate Palmolive-Peet Company, of U.S.A. The defendants were the Chan Yin firm, of No. 16 Fat Hing Street; Leung Sang Kel firm of No. 125 and 121 Queen's Road, Central; Shiu Hing Lung firm of No. 226 Queen's Road, Central; Chung Cheung firm of No. 194 Queen's Road, East; and the Choi Kee firm of No. 1 Kwong Yuen Street, East.

Mr. Hugh Jones appeared for the prosecution, and Mr. O. E. C. Martin for the Chan Yin firm. The other defendants were not represented.

Mr. Martin drew attention to a discrepancy in the wording of summons against his client, in that the summons did not describe the trade mark which they were supposed to have resembled.

Mr. Hugh Jones submitted that it was not quite necessary to specify this on the summons. The defendants were in Court, and the summons could be amended if Mr. Martin desired it, or a new summons could be taken out.

Mr. Martin said he thought the correct procedure would be for the defendant to be discharged, as the summons was not properly framed; the summons could not be amended.

Mr. Hamilton said he would adjourn the summons until 11.15 a.m. on Saturday, so that they could argue the matter out if necessary.

The representative of the Leung Sang Kel pleaded that he had bought the goods from two other firms.

He was fined $25 on each of the summonses against him, and also ordered to pay $100 costs.

The representative of the Shiu Hing Lung firm was also fined $25 or ordered to pay $50 costs, while the other defendants were remanded for hearing until June 19 at 2.15 p.m.

BREWERY CO.'S
REPORTSMALL LOSS AFTER
HEAVY OUTGOINGS

The annual report of Hongkong Breweries and Distillers, Ltd., shows that after making full provision for depreciation of buildings and plant to the extent of $49,044.58, there is a small loss on working account of $2,891.08.

Brewing operations commenced at the beginning of May, 1933, but since the first brews had to mature over a period of four months, no sales could be effected before the end of August, 1933. The statement of accounts now presented, therefore, covers only a period of four months' actual trading.

It should be noted, however, that the Working Account has borne a charge of $26,443.44 for salaries, wages allowances and other overhead expenses for the four months May to August, 1933, and a further charge of $22,317.51 for depreciation in respect of the same period, making a total charge under these heads of $48,760.95 for the four months preceding the date on which the products were first marketed.

In the Profit and Loss Account, there is a further charge of $26,743.96 comprising standing charges incurred during the four months January to April, 1933, and various items of exceptional expenditure which your directors have decided to write off.

The balance at debit of Profit and Loss Account is $57,859.99, which together with the expenditure of $40,667.47 brought forward from the previous year, leaves a balance of $104,427.46 to be carried forward to next Account.

Retiring Director.—In accordance with the Articles of Association, Mr. Samuel So Wong retires, but being eligible, offers himself for re-election.

Auditors.—The accounts have been audited by Messrs. Linstead and Davis who offer themselves for re-election.

MR. CHAN LIM-PAK FAILS
TO APPEAR IN COURT$10,000 BAIL ESTREATED
AND WARRANT
ISSUEDURGENT BUSINESS
IN CANTONLETTER TO MR.
M. K. LO

A sensational development in the Chan Lim-pak case was recorded at the Central Magistracy this morning when Mr. Chan Lim-pak failed to appear.

His bail of $10,000 was estreated and Mr. Hamilton ordered a warrant to be issued for his arrest.

When the case was called, Mr. M. K. Lo, appearing for defendant, said that just before the time was due for him to come to Court, he received a letter from defendant stating that he had called to Canton on very urgent business, and asking him to apply for a remand for a couple of days.

"Of course he is on bail to appear this morning," said Mr. Lo, "but in the circumstances I will leave it to your Worship to do as you like."

FRESH CHARGES? Mr. Hamilton ordered defendant's bail of $10,000 to be estreated, and instructed a warrant to be issued for his arrest.

Mr. Edgar Davidson, appearing for the complainant, Mr. T. Johnson Wong, said he had proposed to put in further charges, but in the circumstances they would have to stand over.

Mr. Chan Lim-pak was remanded on bail last week on six charges of fraudulent appropriation of money and fraudulent keeping of accounts of the Nanyang Tobacco Company in respect of three sums of $500 each.

RABIES IN NEW
TERRITORIESVILLAGE CHILD DIES
AFTER BITE

Rabies is still prevalent in the New Territories, in the Castle Peak Road region. A small child was bitten by a dog in Ting Kau village last Friday and died.

This was revealed by Mr. Wynne-Jones at the Kowloon Magistracy this morning when Mrs. X. S. Volgin, of 31 Ashley Road, was summoned at the Kowloon Magistracy for bringing a dog into Kowloon from the Territories without a permit from the Colonial Veterinary Surgeon on May 20.

Mrs. Volgin apologised for not being in Court last week, and stated that she did not know it was an offence to bring her dog back from the Territories.

His Worship:—Since last week, it has definitely been proved that there is an outbreak of rabies in the Castle Peak Road region. A small child was bitten by a dog in Ting Kau village last Friday and died. I cautioned the other people last week for this offence, and I am going to caution you too.

Ho Chung, 31, a female tenant of 29 Fook Wa Street, Shamshuipo, committed suicide yesterday by drinking Lysol.

DAY BY DAY NEWS IN BRIEF

ALL WISH TO POSSESS KNOWLEDGE, BUT FEW, COMPARATIVELY SPEAKING, ARE WILLING TO PAY THE PRICE.—Juvenal.

Cruelty to four crates of pigeons led to a fine of $15 being imposed by Mr. Macfadyen on a shop feld in the Central Police Court this morning. Inspector James stated there was an average of 90 pigeons to each crate and in every case some of the pigeons were standing on the backs of the others.

Wan Yu, an office boy employed at Messrs. Whiteaway, Laidlaw, and Co., was charged before Mr. Macfadyen in the Central Magistracy this morning with stealing a silver watch, the property of his employers. He admitted the offence. Det-Sgt. Shepherd said defendant was arrested in Wellington Street attempting to sell the watch to a marine hawk. The watch was valued at $5. A fine of $20, or three weeks' hard labour, was imposed.

Mr. Chan Lim-pak, whose failure to appear in answer to criminal charges caused a sensation in Mr. Hamilton's court this morning.

PEAK LANDOWNER
SUMMONEDMOSQUITO-BREEDING CHARGE

A summons, carelessly copied, had to be amended in the Central Police Court this morning when Mr. J. F. Miller, of Bradley and Co., owner of "Rugby Building" Lot 15 and 104, was summoned before Mr. Hamilton that he, "on May 28, A. D. 1934, in this Colony unlawfully did take steps to prevent the recurrence of the breeding of mosquitoes on the premises."

Mr. Hamilton amended the summons to read, "did fail to take steps to prevent..." and remarked that the summons served on the defendant had been carelessly copied.

Defendant denied the charge. Sanitary Inspector Champelovier stated that the house, No. 251, had been demolished.

Defendant:—There are no houses there. Sanitary Insp. Champelovier:—The lot is between the Peak School and Stewart Terrace, near Sir Robert Ho Tung's house. Sanitary Inspector Lockhart stated that the nuisance was discovered first on May 5 and a legal notice was served. The breeding was in flower pots on the top part of the tennis court. These were broken, but the mosquitoes continued to breed in the broken halves.

Defendant:—Certain of that property is not my property at all. Hearing was fixed for Friday at 12.15 p.m.

NO WAGES PAID
CAUTION

Summoned before Mr. Hamilton, at the Central Magistracy this morning, for failing to pay her registered mul-tai wages, and failing to notify her change of address, Lo Yen, married woman, residing at No. 184 Queen's Road West, first floor, was cautioned on the first summons and fined $15 on the second.

Defendant said she had sent money to the girl's mother every month. She admitted the summons of failing to notify her change of address.

Sub-Inspector H. W. Fraser said the girl had been well treated by defendant. She would probably be sent back to her mother.

PUBLIC MONEY
VOTESOVERFLOW COURT IN KOWLOON

Votes totalling $79,222 are to come before the Finance Committee of the Legislative Council to-morrow.

A sum of $3,000 is to be asked for the provision of a temporary building in the Courtyard of the Kowloon Magistracy, which can be used as an overflow Court for minor cases.

A further $16,000 is required for anti-malarial work at Sookunpoo. It is explained that the contractor has already proceeded with the work to such an extent that the sum of $10,000 previously allotted has been absorbed, and he is pressing for remission to complete the programme.

In order to provide essential fire protection for Kowloon in the district of Shamshuipo, a sum of $15,000 is being requested for a new sub-station to be erected in the compound of Shamshuipo Police Station. This building is in substitution of the sub-station at Mongkok for which a sum of $40,000 is provided in the 1934 Estimates.

Other votes requested include $5,100 in respect of the Botanical Gardens improvement, $16,000 for hot water system to the maternity block of Victoria Hospital, and $6,288 for a motor roller for use at the Kai Tak Aerodrome.

BLACKS' DRINKING
EFFICIENT

Does an Australian aborigine need as much water while working as a white man? To find the answer, Professor W. H. Davies of Sydney journeyed 5,000 miles to Central Australia and lived for a short time with the blacks. He has just returned with his scientific curiosity satisfied. "The Central Australian aborigine," said he, "requires as much, if not more, water than the European." His kidneys, he also discovered, are definitely more efficient than those of the white man.

In order to ensure correct results, the professor fed himself and his two companions, and the blacks, on food and liquid always carefully weighed out. This was combined with the careful and periodical weighing of themselves and the subjects.

There is talk in the air of Canberra being a possible meeting place for the next Empire Economic Conference.

The Federal Cabinet has before it a proposal to invite the Governments of the Empire to meet in Australia so that they may discuss what basis of co-operation is to be the Ottawa agreement. This has about 18 months to run, says Austral News, but the ministers consider that such an important conference demands plenty of time for preparatory work.

PROMISSORY NOTE
CASEJUDGMENT RESERVED
$1,000 CLAIM

The hearing was concluded before Mr. Justice Jacks, at the Supreme Court this morning, of a claim by Yuen Kam-chuen, of 23, Tang Lung Street, East Point, against Chun Mow Koo Tea House, 6a and 6b, West Street, Quarry Bay for $1,000 lent.

Mr. C. Y. Kwan appeared for plaintiff and Mr. F. H. Locaby for the defendant.

Chun Yun, defendant's son, was the last witness to be called. He said he had been in prison last year in respect of two debts. The debt which was the subject of the present claim was not contracted by his father. Witness himself obtained the use of his father's chop surreptitiously and put it on the promissory note at plaintiff's request.

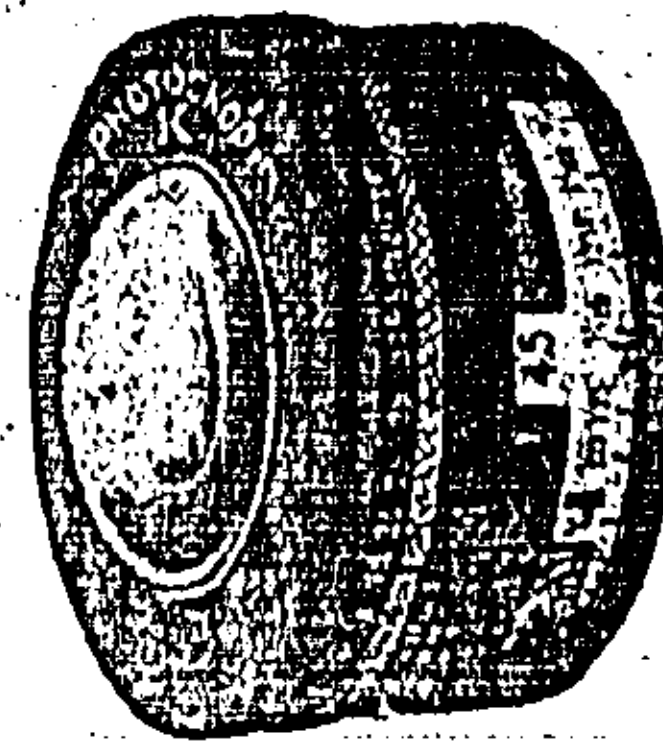

His Lordship reserved judgment.

FOUR LEADING COUNTIES LOSE POINTS

YORKSHIRE SUSTAIN INITIAL DEFEAT OF SEASON

MIDDLESEX LOSE 8 WICKETS FOR 51 RUNS, BUT WIN!

London, June 12. Sussex, Kent, Yorkshire, Surrey, leading counties in that order in the county cricket championship table, all lost points in the course of the programme which came to a close to-day.

Kent, Yorkshire and Surrey were beaten outright while Sussex lost first innings points to Notts.

Middlesex obtained an extraordinary victory over Yorkshire. After leading by 174 runs on the first innings, they had a thrilling scramble to hit off the runs, losing eight wickets before they reached 51, the required number.

Peebles demoralised Yorkshire, capturing 5 for 68 in the first innings, which realised 174, and 7 for 85 in the second, which totalled 220.

Middlesex scored freely in their initial visit to the crease, aggregating 344, of which Hettme scored 116.

RACE AGAINST CLOCK.

Then in a race against the clock, Middlesex went for the runs, and despite wonderful bowling by Bowes, who took 6 for 17, managed to score them with two wickets in hand.

This was Yorkshire's first outright defeat of the season.

Notts and Sussex had a keen fight for first innings lead, finishing in favour of Notts, who scored 331 to the Sussex total of 312.

J. Parks (104) for Sussex and Harris (107) for Notts were the chief run-getters. There was never any hope of a definite decision and Sussex played out time.

INEXPLICABLE COLLAPSE AGAINST GRIMMETT AND O'REILLY

Australia Wins Deservedly After Holding Upper Hand

FORCING the cricket from the opening ball of the day, Australia yesterday won the first Test match at Nottingham by 238 runs. The whole team responded finely to Woodfull's call for on-the-toes cricket, batsmen in the first hour of the day hitting at everything and thereby scoring rapidly, and bowlers and fielders afterwards throwing the English batsmen into disorder by their high standard work.

Australia won deservedly. Apart from the first day's play, they always enjoyed the upper hand. They obtained a grip on the Saturday which they never relaxed, and although yesterday the odds were against them when England went into lunch with 20 runs on the board and all wickets intact, by dint of fine team work they broke down what had been regarded as the best English batting side for years, dismissing them for as small a total as 141.

CHIEF honours go to O'Reilly and Grimmett. They had the Englishmen guessing in both innings. It is significant that both are slow spin bowlers. Not even a crumbling wicket yesterday explains away everything.

ACCORDING to the cables, these bowlers had the batsmen all hitting too late or too early. Only three wickets were clean bowled. Sutcliffe, the Nawab, Hendren, and Garry were all caught in the field. Leyland, Hammond and Farnes fell victims to Oldfield's vigilance.

A WOODFULL and a Ponsford in England's side yesterday would probably have saved them from defeat. Apart from Leyland, England had no defensive batsmen. Possibly this was just as well. A definite result is much better than a drawn match, which is made drawn by laborious batting on the part of a team.

In the morning Australia took the only course open. They went for runs and were not concerned how many wickets they lost in getting them. Consequently a little more than an hour's batting saw 114 added to 3. Five batsmen sacrificed their wickets in securing these, but it was worth it. England were made to bat half an hour before lunch, which meant that after the adjournment they would face a cut-up wicket.

BROWN alone remained stolid in the morning. McCabe continued his hurricane hitting, and quick runs were made by O'Reilly, Darling and Oldfield.

LESLIE Ames, who is no mean footballer, had to thank his experience of the winter game for the catch with which he dismissed Brown. The wicketkeeper failed to hold the ball at the first attempt, but as it was falling to the ground, he kicked it up and caught it on the rebound. Smart and spectacular.

FARNES made his future selection for the Tests a practical certainty. During the match he took ten wickets for 179 runs.

ENGLAND'S "TAIL" AGAIN IN THE LIMELIGHT

SIX WICKETS FALL FOR THIRTY EIGHT RUNS

London, June 12. When lunch was taken, England had scored 27 for no loss, Walters scoring 17 and Sutcliffe 10.

With the score at 51, Sutcliffe lost his wicket when he was caught low in the first slip by Chipperfield. The ball bowled by O'Reilly, spun off his bat. He scored 21, 51-2-24.

Hammond then joined the England skipper and after adding 32 runs was smartly stamped by Oldfield, off Grimmett, 83-2-10.

The Nawab of Patna next came in and with the score at 91, Walters scored bowled and dropped with an off break from O'Reilly. Walters' effort was a gallant one and during his stay at the crease he scored 40, which included seven fours, 91-3-40. Hendren joined the Nawab, but he picked 42, a wrong ball to hit off Grimmett and sent a skier which Ponsford felled at deep mid-off, 103-4-10.

Maurice Leyland joined Hendren and at 110 the hero of England's stand in the first innings was caught by Chipperfield, who took off a very low fly off one of O'Reilly's fastest deliveries, 110-5-3.

The score at tea time was 115 for five, Leyland having six to his credit and Mr. "Extras" four.

MAGNIFICENT STAND.

Leyland was playing magnificently, stone-walling, fighting for time.

Ames, who joined him after tea, did not stay long. He was taken by O'Reilly playing an off spinner. He scored 12, but lasted 70 minutes, which was excellent compared to what was to come, 184-6-12.

Garry was out with a duck. Chipperfield caught him low in the slips, off Grimmett, 135-7-0.

Then Leyland was caught by Oldfield, having put up a splendid stand for two solid hours, in which he scored 18, 137-8-18.

The heart seemed to go out of the England side, for the next wickets came down in rapid order. Time was growing short, too, which made it ex-

Actually the 179 runs are not so important. For a fast bowler to take ten wickets in a match, when on the opposition, it is the slow bowlers who did the damage, is quite sufficient to reveal that bowler's worth.

THE most inexplicable thing about the match was the collapse of the English batsmen before slow bowlers. In past years it has been Australia's speed merchants who have demoralised English batsmen. One has lively recollections of Macdonald and Gregory. The general impression was the English batsmen knew slow bowling too well to be seriously troubled by it unless it was exploited on a glacial pace.

TRENT Bridge was never that during this match. Yet the figures of O'Reilly and Grimmett over two innings respectively read:—78.4-40-129-11; 85.3-52-120-8.

IT means that the Australian attack is far more formidable than any of the English critics were prepared to admit when they first saw them in action last month.

BOTH countries have now won twice at Trent Bridge, while two other matches were left drawn. England's second innings total yesterday was the second lowest made on the ground in a completed Test match innings. The lowest was 112, compiled by England in 1921 when Australia won by ten wickets. Yesterday's total is actually the smallest for a second innings.

IN aggregating 647 for their two visits to the crease, the Australians had the distinction of compiling the highest total of runs in two innings in a Test match at Nottingham. The previous best was 616 in two innings by England in 1905.

Australians Try Golf

BRADMAN'S SKILL

London, May 3. The Australians played their first match yesterday—but at golf, not cricket!

These Test match cricketers went down to the delightful West Kent course at Bickley, near Chislehurst.

Bradman played a good game. This extremely fit young man seems able to play any ball game with the greatest of ease.

After watching him play six holes and never once get into trouble, I came to the conclusion that if cricket did not interest him so much he might very well be a great golfer, writes F. W. Sanderson.

And if those games were not enough, I am told he is well above average at lawn tennis and billiards.

Woodfull plays golf as he plays cricket—accuracy and no chances. His long shots are good, without any attempt to get exceptional distance, and on the greens he will never spoil a good score by trying to hole long-distance putts. McCabe and Darling, too, are good.

asperating. Farnes went out with a duck, having followed Verity to the crease when Leyland was caught, 137-9-0.

Mitchell joined Verity. It was the last hope. There was not more than a half hour to play. The batsmen were careful. Mitchell scored very slowly. Verity did not score at all.

O'Reilly's bullet-like delivery finished the match, for he took Mitchell's wicket with a leg spinner.

England had lost by 238 runs, with only ten minutes to play before time and the call of a draw—Reuter.

LEONARDO GAVIA WINS ANOTHER TITLE

PHILIPPINES TENNIS ACE NOW THE TOP OF THE TREE

SECURES CITY CHAMPIONSHIP IN CONVINCING STYLE

Manila, June 28. Leonardo Gavia, Jr., retained the city open tennis championship by defeating Leopoldo Calixto in the finals yesterday afternoon at the Victoria Courts. The scores were 4-6, 7-5, 6-1 and 6-2.

By winning the title yesterday, Gavia earned the right to keep the K. Osawa trophy, emblematic of the city open tennis championship. It was the second time he won the championship. This cup is a two-leg trophy.

The match yesterday turned out to be one of the closest and best fought encounters in the entire tournament. Calixto played inspired tennis, but Gavia's better court generalship won the argument for him.

The first set was won by Calixto by 4-6 count. He started out fine and clinched three games in a row, then slowed up his pace to allow Gavia to knot the count at 3-all. They halved the next two games then Calixto forged ahead by playing sterling tennis and captured the set to the tune of 4-6.

The two fought-at-break-neck pace in the second set, but after a prolonged argument which was featured by Gavia's smashing net attacks and volleys he finally won the set by 7-5 score. Calixto offered him a stiff fight in this set and forced him to extend himself before romping away with the set.

The third set found Gavia playing true to form and allowed his opponent to score only one game. Calixto took the third game after which he was badly outclassed by his rival.

Calixto started the fourth set by taking the first game. He threatened to stage a rally, but Gavia checked him with his beautiful backhand shots and accurate placements. Gavia took five games in a row, dropped the seventh and won decisively the eighth game from Calixto and with it the match and the trophy, symbolic of the championship.

JONES GOES TO NOTTS

Charles Jones, the Arsenal and Welsh international half-back, will, after all, become manager for Notts County.

An announcement to this effect recently brought a denial from the Arsenal, who intimated that Jones had entered into an agreement with them.

Jones, who ended his playing career at the close of last season, found himself in the peculiar position of being claimed by two clubs. A long conference followed with the directors of Notts County, who had an interview with the Arsenal board.

As a result Lord Belper, president of Notts County, was able to announce that Jones will immediately take over the management of the club.

Jones started his playing career with Cardiff City, but he was transferred to Nottingham Forest when he transferred to the Arsenal. As a player he was one of the game's great tacticians.

BIG FIGHT ON TO-MORROW

BAER WILL MEET CARNERA

POSTPONEMENT NOW VERY UNLIKELY

New York, June 7. Jack Dempsey and Ancil Hoffman, co-handlers of Max "Modest Maxie" Baer, American challenger for the world's heavyweight championship, to-day announced that they had abandoned the idea of asking for a week's postponement of the bout scheduled for June 14.

Both said that although the challenger could use an extra week of training, he would knock out Carnera, Italian Man Mountain, regardless of the 2-1 odds gamblers are offering today against such a feat.

The United Press learned that the efforts of Commissioners Larry Phelan and J. H. Wear were responsible for the defeat of the postponement idea when placed before the New York Boxing Commission for approval.

Bill Brown, members of the commission, announced earlier to-day that he would recommend a month's postponement of the bout or complete cancellation. He said that his recommendation would be based on the poor physical condition of Baer who has not had a fight in nearly 12 months, since knocking out Max Schmeling, former German titleholder, in the eighth round.

Because of the rumours making the rounds of Caillflower Alley on the poor condition of the challenger, Carnera to-day picked up from a 9-5 favourite to a 2-1 favourite to win.

The announcement made by Dempsey, co-promoter of the match, and the Jolly Hoffman, Baer's mentor, means that the bout will proceed as has been scheduled for the past few months.

IN DEFENCE OF PORTSMOUTH'S CUP FINAL TACTICS

WHY LOSERS GAVE UP THE INITIATIVE

MANY ARSENAL CHANGES: NEW BLOOD BEING SOUGHT

"Everyone blames us because we went on the defensive after getting the lead, but the boys had done this in all their other ties, and the tactics had paid. To condemn them now is, in my opinion, unfair. We only lost the match because we lost Allen."

This was the official reply of Portsmouth to the criticism of their policy in the Cup Final with Manchester City, who recovered so gallantly when the match appeared half lost.

All teams have their limitations, and I believe that the scheme which Portsmouth designed was adopted to minimise theirs, writes Frank M. Carruthers in the Daily Mail. Their plan was to strike quickly and win in the first half, and then, when the pace had caused the legs of some of the men to drag wearily, to fall back to obtain a respite from the burden of attack. The loss of Allen was a staggering blow.

VARIED BUT FUTILE.

I have never known a final which produced so many conflicting views as to the teams and the play. In my view it was just an ordinary match representing the standard of football to-day, but thrilling and exciting.

Portsmouth had more variety of movement. In the first half they attacked both down the middle and by means of the wings. Manchester City depended mainly on the ball coming back into the middle by means of the old-fashioned centre, and with Allen towering over Tilson to head it away it seemed a futile policy.

United the strain began to tell, Jack Smith played splendidly as the Portsmouth schemer, but in all-round football ability no one showed the same class as Busby, the Manchester City right half.

Brook with his magnetic enthusiasm, is a great player to have on your side, and it was he who kindled the fire which set the team alight to make their magnificent recovery.

The ball was frequently out of play. One official estimate was that at least a quarter of an hour's football was lost, and that the time had come when there would have to be an alteration of rule to prevent the wastage. But it seemed to me that the ball was thrown back so quickly by the boys engaged for the purpose that the players were not allowed even the short rest they would have liked.

ILLNESSES.

Both clubs held banquets after the match, and it was unfortunate that illness prevented Mr. A. H. Hughes, the chairman of Manchester City, from being present. Mr. C. E. Sutcliffe, a vice-president of the Football League and a member of the Football Association Council, was taken ill on arriving in London, but he was able to go to Wembley. Mr. Ted Robbins, the secretary of the Welsh F.A., and his wife had to return to Wrexham hurriedly shortly after reaching London owing to the illness of their youngest son.

ARSENAL MATCH.

The Arsenal, with all their vision and enterprise, are making important moves to fill the gaps which must inevitably shortly occur in their team. This is to be the last season for Jack and Jones, both of whom have continued in a lower grade of football, but it is not their wish to do so.

I think it is likely that Davidson, the 19-years-old inside left of the Scottish club St. Johnstone, will be secured by the Arsenal, but with James again showing such fine form a more urgent need is half-backs.

Negotiations are in progress in respect to three outstanding players—Copping, of Leeds United; Gosling, of Bolton Wanderers; and another in the Midlands. It is said that Arsenal will have to pay £8,000 for Copping and as much as five figures for the man who must be nameless. It is scarcely likely that Bolton Wanderers will be tempted to part with Gosling if they achieve promotion, as now appears probable.

These are extraordinary prices, but the Arsenal have had a season of unparalleled success, and the fortunes of the club have been made through keeping the team up to the championship standard.

It has been stated that Chelsea do not intend to re-engage Gallagher, who has not appeared in the side since Easter, but I understand that he is to be retained. At the same time I believe the club are prepared to consider offers for his transfer.

BLANK-OUT BY RAIN

GIANTS CONTINUE TO WIN

New York, June 12. The programme in the American Baseball League to-day was ruined by rain. Two matches were postponed without a ball being thrown, and in the St. Louis v. New York Yankees encounter, the match had reached the fourth inning, when a downpour brought play to a stop.

The Yankees were then leading three-one, Ruth having homered, and DeBergmas having responded for the Browns. The match was declared null and void.

In the National League, the Giants again chalked up a big score and easily beat Cincinnati Reds, St. Louis Cardinals kept pace with a win over Boston Braves.

MOTOR CYCLING

J. GUTHRIE WINS JUNIOR T.T.

London, June 12. The Isle of Man Junior Tourist Trophy motor cycle race was held yesterday in brilliant weather conditions. Visibility was excellent and a thrilling event was marred only by an accident to H. Handley, who crashed on a Norton and received superficial injuries.

J. Guthrie, riding a 499 Norton, won in the record time of 3 hrs. 20 mins. 14 secs. He covered the seven laps of 37½ miles each at an average speed of 50.16 miles an hour, beating the previous best time of 3 hrs. 23 mins. 20 secs. or 48.08 miles an hour, set up by Stanley Woods last year, when he won from Percy Hunt and J. Guthrie.

J. H. Simpson, also riding a Norton, was second in 3 hrs. 20 mins.

Chelsea F.C. Surprise

PRIESTLEY GOES HOME

Tom Priestley, Chelsea's Irish international inside forward, left London for his home at Belfast without having re-signed, or agreed to re-sign, for his club.

He is uncertain as to his future. "My career as a school teacher means a good deal to me," he explained to a reporter, "and I am not satisfied that I can carry on my profession and at the same time do all that the club require of me."

"I did start teaching in London, but had to give it up when my first stroke of bad luck, an attack of tonsillitis, occurred. But my experience during that period of teaching has made me think hard. I feel that I must talk it over with my father."

Priestley's left eye was heavily bandaged. He has been a most unlucky player in his first season in London, for after showing promise of much brilliance, he sustained prolonged eye trouble as the result of the entry of dirt under the lid at Sunderland on New Year's Day.

Three operations have been necessary, and Priestley has been told to report to a specialist in Belfast. The medical opinion is that the eye will have completely recovered after two months' rest.

Priestley, who is 22, cost Chelsea a little more than £2,000.

The Chelsea XI, that have played in recent matches, together with Law and Odell, have been re-signed.

LAWN BOWLS

RECORD SCORE IN PAIRS TOURNAY

41 SHOTS TO 9

Six matches in the lawn bowls open pairs championship and two fixtures in the open singles championship were decided yesterday afternoon.

A record victory was established by J. Fraser and A. Chapman when they defeated D. Fitches and P. Kelly by 41 shots to nine on the Taikoo Recreation Club green.

On the Civil Service green, B. W. Bradbury and U. M. Omar defeated their fellow clubmates W. Ward and R. F. Lux by 29 shots to 12. E. G. Post and G. Perkins, but little difficulty in accounting for W. Forrest and W. McHardy on the Indian Recreation Club green by 31 shots to 11.

The winners scored on 15 heads and registered three fours, while the losers scored on six heads.

A postponed match in the Singles championship was played off yesterday on the Civil Service green, when H. Hampton defeated A. E. Canrey by 21 shots to 15.

On the Kowloon C.C. green, W. McLeod and W. Mair defeated R. G. Craig and J. Kompton by 20 shots to 18 in a close match.

A victory by 21 shots to 19 was gained by V. Fetherick and J. Walson when they met A. O. Brown and B. E. Maughan on the Kowloon Dock green.

Leading by 10 shots to one on the 9th head, W. K. Way and A. S. Gomes defeated W. W. Hirst and C. J. Tacchi by 22 shots to 14 on the Club de Recreio green.

In an open singles championship match T. Ferguson defeated R. Ellis on the Recreio green by 21 shots to 9. The game concluded on the 16th head.

John Pooler's Victory.

It was John Pooler who beat A. F. Paul on the Yacht Club's green on Monday last and not "J. Tolan," Pooler, who plays for the Civil Service C. C. is not an experienced bowler as his opponent, Paul, who skips for the Hongkong Electric and the result was one of the surprises of the competition.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

By W. E. McKenney

Solution to Previous Contract Problem

One of the purposes of leading a king is to show partner that you hold either the ace or the queen. If you hold the K-Q, you lead the king—and if you continue with the queen and it holds, your partner knows that you have the ace. Why some players are so eager to cash their own cards that they forget all about developing tricks in their partner's hand is sometimes hard to account for. Don't just play your own thirteen cards—you have a partner who is just as eager to defeat that contract as you; so work with him.

When you have shown your partner a controlling card and he asks you not to continue that suit, believe him and try some other suit.

The Bidding

West's overall of one spade over one heart shows that he is not strong enough to double—he is not willing to play the hand alone at two spades. As West has given South another chance to bid, it is not necessary that North keep the bidding open.

When South bids two hearts, he is showing a minimum. However, North feels that he should tell his partner something about the strength of his hand and bids three diamonds. But when South bids three hearts, that is a definite sign off and North properly passes.

The Play

West's opening lead is the king of spades, followed by the queen, on which East plays the three and then the seven, asking his partner not to continue. You can see that if West shifts to a club, East will make three club tricks and the contract will be defeated.

However, if West carelessly lays down the ace of spades, the declarer will trump with the three of hearts, lead a small heart, and win in dummy with the jack. He returns a heart from dummy, winning with the ace.

He then cashes the king of hearts, discarding a club from dummy. Now the king of diamonds is played and East might make up for his partner's error

Today's Contract Problem

South is declarer at three no trump. West fails to open a club, but leads a diamond. Now can declarer make six-odd?

Solution in next issue. 10

If he plays the jack of diamonds on this trick. But he plays the six. So when declarer leads a small diamond and wins in dummy with the ace,

In The Summer Months, Special Care Is Necessary.

Summer months are the anxious months for parents for it is during the hot months that children's stomach and bowel troubles are more prevalent than at other times of the year, and constant watch must be kept on the little one's health lest minor troubles develop into dysentery, typhoid and other serious illnesses.

At the first signs that all is not well, if there is a tendency to constipation or indigestion, loss of appetite, stomachache, unusual looseness of the bowels, bad temper, lassitude, fitful sleep, a dose or two of Baby's Own Tablets should be administered without delay, and usually this will be sufficient to correct the trouble and restore normal health.

The prescription of a physician who made a special study of children's ailments, pleasant to take and easy to give, containing nothing which can harm the delicate intestines of young children, Baby's Own Tablets are the ideal specific for little children's health troubles. They are to be found in countless homes throughout the world where there are little children. Obtainable at all chemists.

One sure way for CORN RELIEF

Just a drop or two on the "touchy" spot and pain vanishes—then peel off the corn a few days later.

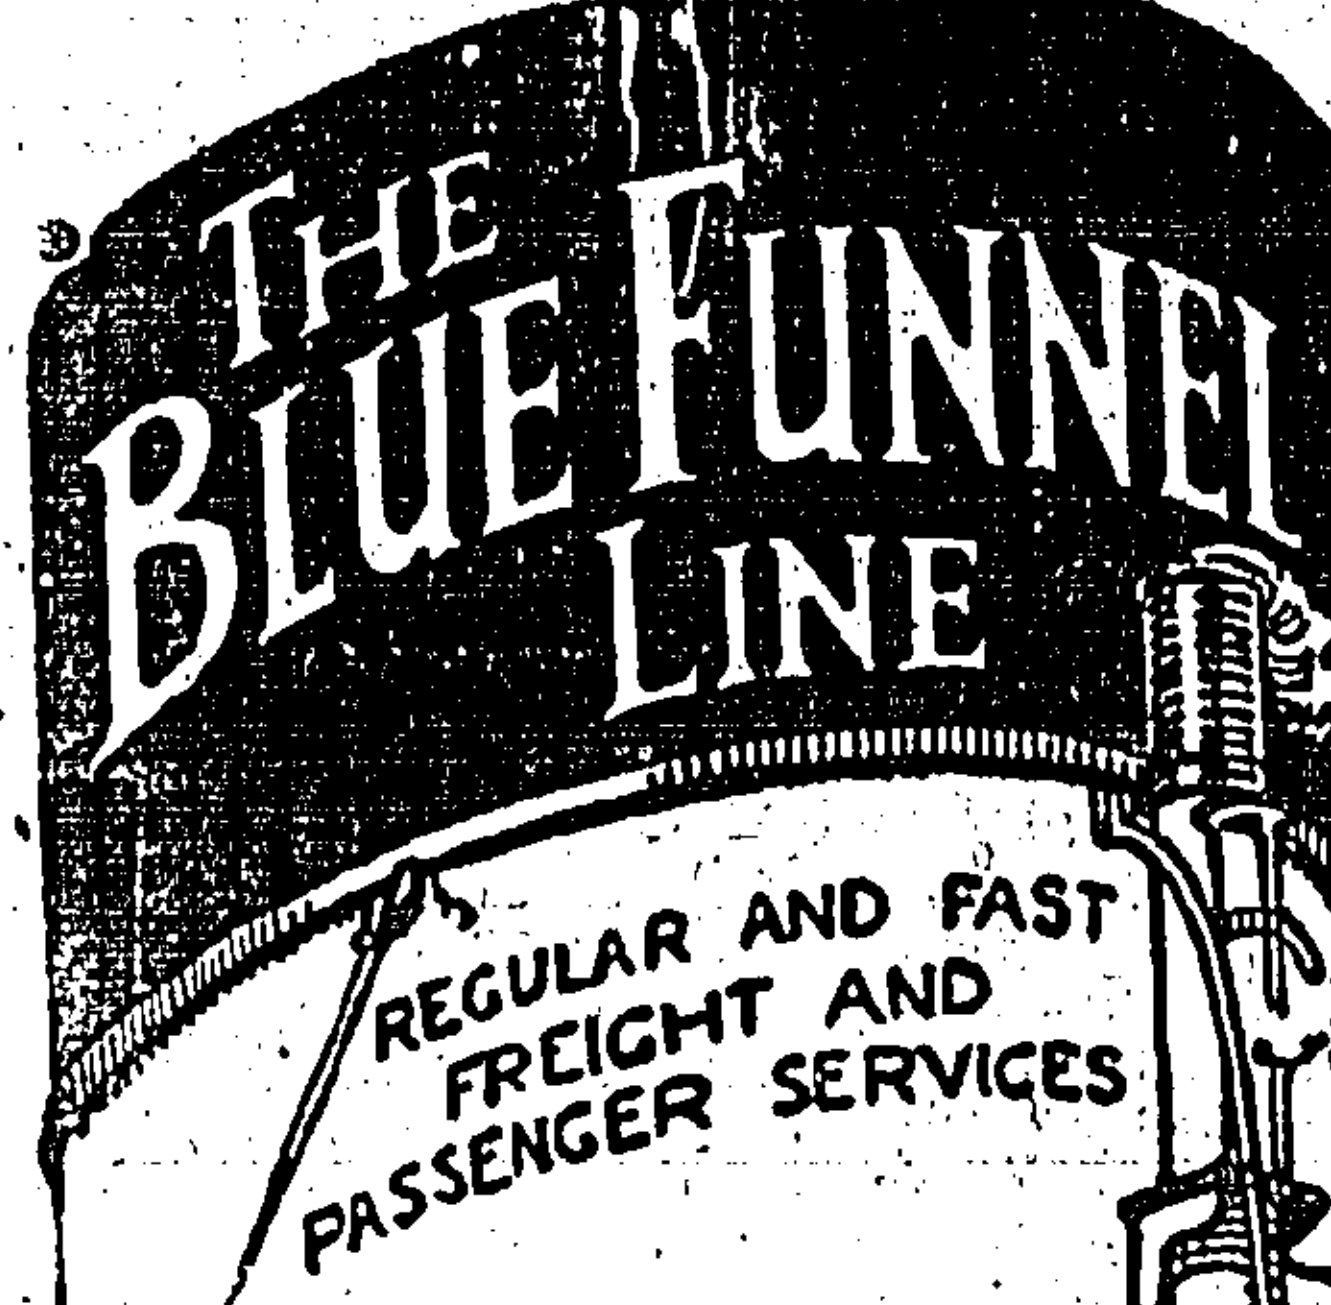

Use "GETS-IT"

Better because it's liquid

East is forced to follow with the jack and now, when a small diamond is returned, East has to play the queen.

As the declarer has three losing clubs, he simply discards one of his losers and West's ten follows. Now, of course, the declarer is bound to make the king of clubs, which gives him his contract.

Verity Ordered To Swatow

TO WATCH SHIPPING INTERESTS

H.M.S. Verity, has been detached to Swatow to watch the interests of British merchantmen flying in that neighbourhood which are, under recent regulations, issued by the Bureau of Navigation, subject to inspection by officers of the Bureau in conjunction with the Chinese Maritime Customs.

We were officially informed this morning that it is the intention of the Naval authorities to keep a warship stationed at Swatow for some time.

The recent measures provided for the inspection of foreign ships plying in Chinese waters, and that steamship companies wishing to operate inland river services must apply to the Navigation Bureau for licences. Companies already in possession of certificates are now required to apply to the Maritime Customs or the Bureau for confirmation, and if companies have already received inland navigation permits they must furnish the Bureau with the routes and time tables of their vessels and obtain the approval of that organisation before operating the services.

The inspections are carried out by highly trained Chinese Maritime Engineers, the majority of which have received training abroad.

NEW LEG-THEORY SENSATION

COUNTY CRICKET CRISIS

NOTTINGHAMSHIRE WARNED

ACTION BY TWO FAMOUS TEAMS

London, June 12.

Leg-theory bowling as practised by Larwood against the Australians in the last series of Tests has cropped up again in acute controversial form—but not this time in connection with the Australians.

The Evening Standard carried a sensational report to-night suggesting the possibility of bitterness in county cricket.

The Evening Standard states that as a sequel to the recent leg-theory tactics adopted by Nottinghamshire in their matches against Essex, Cambridge and Sussex, the representatives of two of the most famous cricketing counties to-day visited Trent Bridge and informed the Nottinghamshire County Cricket Club that if fast leg-theory bowling was used against them this season, they would not, in any circumstances, agree to play them in 1935.

PREPARED TO WALK OFF.

It is even said that one of these counties is prepared to walk from the field and concede the match this summer if fast leg-theory

Waterloo Bridge Re-Building

L.C.C. TAKES FINAL DECISION

London, June 12.

The London County Council, after a four hours' debate to-day, adopted by 76 votes to 47, the joint recommendation of the Highways and Finance Committees that immediate steps should be taken for rebuilding Waterloo Bridge out of revenue.

Mr. Herbert Morrison, Chairman of the Council, gave an undertaking to the People of London that whatever the cost of the work falling on the rates, the Council would not spend one penny less on housing, education and necessary services.

The joint report of the Committees mentions that during the last five years substantial sums out of the rates had been set aside to meet the capital expenditure which the rebuilding will involve.

Waterloo Bridge is 100 years old.

Owing to the subsidence of the piers due to the lowering of the river bed, caused by the scour of the stream at this point, it has not been in full use for ten years and a temporary structure alongside has carried part of the traffic.

—British Wireless.

bowling is indulged in.—Reuter.
Reuter does not say whether Larwood was responsible for the adoption of the tactics, but it is noteworthy that he took 9 wickets for 81 runs in two innings against Leicester.
